Consumption Reader:

The Consumption Reader David B. Clarke, Marcus A. Doel, Kate M. L. Housiaux, 2003 This reader offers an essential selection of the best work on the Consumer Society It brings together in an engaging surprising and thought provoking way a diverse range of topics and theoretical perspectives

Consumption John Storey, 2002-10-18 This book provides a clear and wide ranging overview of consumption as a sociological concept Arguing that consumption is both an unavoidable part of life and an ongoing dialectical process it gives a critical assessment of a range of theoretical approaches to the study of consumption and the possibilities these frameworks can offer Consumption is something we all do It is not just another word for shopping When we eat and drink or when we read a book or watch TV or visit an art gallery or spend an evening in a pub we are consuming There is not a world of consumption that some of us do not enter We are all consumers and consumption must be regarded as an important sociological concept as a result Consumption is also connected to notions of agency what people do rather than what is done to them or made available to them for their doings Before the critical focus on consumption it was assumed that the meaning and use of things was dictated by how they were produced or by their simple mute materiality Focusing on consumption challenges this way of thinking rather than the mute and predictable end point of production it is rethought as an activity a process something we do that involves use and meaning It is how most of us intervene in culture This thought provoking yet accessible book offers a valuable introduction of the concept of consumption for researchers and undergraduate and postgraduate students in a range of fields within the humanities and social sciences including sociology history anthropology English media and cultural studies

The Map Reader Martin Dodge, Rob Kitchin, Chris Perkins, 2011-05-09 WINNER OF THE CANTEMIR PRIZE 2012 awarded by the Berendel Foundation The Map Reader brings together for the first time classic and hard to find articles on mapping This book provides a wide ranging and coherent edited compendium of key scholarly writing about the changing nature of cartography over the last half century The editorial selection of fifty four theoretical and thought provoking texts demonstrates how cartography works as a powerful representational form and explores how different mapping practices have been conceptualised in particular scholarly contexts Themes covered include paradigms politics people aesthetics and technology Original interpretative essays set the literature into intellectual context within these themes Excerpts are drawn from leading scholars and researchers in a range of cognate fields including Cartography Geography Anthropology Architecture Engineering Computer Science and Graphic Design The Map Reader provides a new unique single source reference to the essential literature in the cartographic field more than fifty specially edited excerpts from key classic articles and monographs critical introductions by experienced experts in the field focused coverage of key mapping practices techniques and ideas a valuable resource suited to a broad spectrum of researchers and students working in cartography and GIScience geography the social sciences media studies and visual arts full page colour illustrations of significant maps as provocative visual think pieces fully indexed clearly structured and accessible ways into a fast changing field of cartographic research Ethical Consumption James G. Carrier, Peter G. Luetchford, 2012-03-01 Increasingly consumers in North America and Europe see their purchasing as a way to express to the commercial world their concerns about trade justice the environment and similar issues This ethical consumption has attracted growing attention in the press and among academics Extending beyond the growing body of scholarly work on the topic in several ways this volume focuses primarily on consumers rather than producers and commodity chains It presents cases from a variety of European countries and is concerned with a wide range of objects and types of ethical consumption not simply the usual tropical foodstuffs trade justice and the system of fair trade Contributors situate ethical consumption within different contexts from common Western assumptions about economy and society to the operation of ethical consumption commerce to the ways that people s ethical consumption can affect and be affected by their social situation By locating consumers and their practices in the social and economic contexts in which they exist and that their ethical consumption affects this volume presents a compelling interrogation of the rhetoric and assumptions of ethical consumption The China Reader David L. Shambaugh, 2016 The rise of China is the most significant development in world affairs in this generation No nation in history has risen as quickly or modernized as rapidly as has China over the four decades This sixth edition of The China Reader chronicles the diverse aspects of this transition since the late 1990s It is comprehensive in scope and draws upon both primary Chinese sources and secondary Western analyses written by the world s leading experts on contemporary China Perfectly suited as both a textbook for students as well as for specialists and the public alike the volume covers the full range of China s internal and external developments During the past three decades China dramatically modernized its economy and taken a position as one of the two major powers in the world Its mega economy has skyrocketed to being the second largest in the world and will soon surpass the United States on aggregate The physical transformation of the country has been extraordinary to witness with infrastructure development unparalleled in human history Modern cities featuring futuristic architecture have literally risen from farmland across the country As China has developed domestically it has also taken its place as a major power on the world stage Whether in its relations with other powers the United States Russia and European Union with its neighbors in Asia or other countries across the world China is now a major factor in international relations Its businesses are going global and its people are establishing their footprint from Antarctica to outer space For all its newfound prowess China s rise has not been a smooth process Domestically the nation s juggernaut economy has produced numerous negative social and environmental side effects Its political system remains anachronistic and authoritarian with substantial repression Externally Beijing s rapid military modernization and regional territorial claims have alarmed China s neighbors Its relationship with the United States is complex and increasingly strained And its soft power remains limited Still the rise of China is the story of the current era The China Reader is a perfect window into the complexities of this historic process Consuming Autobiographies Claire Boyle, 2007 Since 1975

French literary writing has been marked by an autobiographical turn which has seen authors increasingly often tap into the vein of what the French term criture de soi. This coincides paradoxically with the death of autobiography as these authors self consciously distance themselves and their writings from conventional autobiography founding a nouvelle autobiographie where the very possibility of autobiographical expression is questioned. In the first book length study in English to address this phenomenon Claire Boyle sheds a new light on this hostility toward autobiography through a series of ground breaking studies of estrangement in autobiographical works by major post war authors Nathalie Sarraute, Georges Perec, Jean Genet and Hélène Cixous. She identifies autobiography as a site of conflict between writer and reader as authors struggle to assert the unknowableness of their identity in the face of a readership resolutely desiring privileged knowledge. Autobiography emerges as a deeply troubling genre for authors with the reader as an antagonistic consumer of the autobiographical self.

The Block Reader in Visual Culture George Robertson, 1996. Brings together classic writings by leading cultural theorists which were first published in the journal and are now unavailable.

The Reader's Companion to U.S. Women's History Wilma Mankiller, 1998. Contains articles on fashion and style, household workers, images of women, jazz and blues, maternity homes, Native American women, Phillis Wheatley, homes, picture brides, single women and teaching.

Understanding Marx's Capital: A reader's guide Adam Booth, Rob Sewell, 2019-07-11. Marx's Capital was a book that revolutionised political economy and for the first time opened our eyes to the real workings of capitalism. It was however met with a wall of silence from the mainstream economists and the establishment. Despite this Capital became regarded in the workers movement as the Bible of the working class. The aim of this book, written by authors from the International Marxist Tendency, is to help guide readers through the pages of volume one of Capital to bring out the main themes and ideas contained within it and to discuss the relevance of this great Marxist classic in terms of understanding the crisis ridden world around us today and most importantly how we can radically transform it.

Reading Ads Socially Robert Goldman, 2005-07-25. This systematic and authoritative book provides an unrivalled guide to understanding ad culture. It shows how the logic of commodities permeates the ways we think about ourselves, our relationships and our desires. Richly illustrated and written with great clarity, it will be essential reading for anyone interested in ad culture.

Consuming Schools Trevor Norris, 2011-01-01. The increasing prevalence of consumerism in contemporary society often equates happiness with the acquisition of material objects. Consuming Schools describes the impact of consumerism on politics and education and charts the increasing presence of commercialism in the educational sphere through an examination of issues such as school business partnerships, advertising in schools and corporate sponsored curriculum. First linking the origins of consumerism to important political and philosophical thinkers, Trevor Norris goes on to closely examine the distinction between the public and the private sphere through the lens of twentieth century intellectuals Hannah Arendt and Jean Baudrillard. Through Arendt's account of the human activities of labour, work and action and the ensuing eclipse of the public realm and Baudrillard's consideration of the visual character of consumerism Norris examines how school commercialism has been critically engaged by in class activities such as media literacy programs and educational policies regulating school business partnerships

Food and Femininity in Twentieth-Century British Women's Fiction Andrea Adolph, 2016-04-15 In her feminist intervention into the ways in which British women novelists explore and challenge the limitations of the mind body binary historically linked to constructions of femininity Andrea Adolph examines female characters in novels by Barbara Pym Angela Carter Helen Dunmore Helen Fielding and Rachel Cusk Adolph focuses on how women's relationships to food cooking eating serving are used to locate women's embodiment within the everyday and also reveal the writers' commitment to portraying a unified female subject For example using food and food consumption as a lens highlights how women writers have used food as a trope that illustrates the interconnectedness of sex and gender with issues of sexuality social class and subjectivity all aspects that fall along a continuum of experience in which the intellect and the physical body are mutually complicit Historically grounded in representations of women in periodicals housekeeping and cooking manuals and health and beauty books Adolph's theoretically informed study complicates our understanding of how women's social and cultural roles are intricately connected to issues of food and food consumption

Digital Reading of Net Generation in China Han Zhang, Jiajie Lu, 2023-08-04 With the methodology of eye tracking experiments in depth interviews and large scale questionnaires across cities this book provides a panoramic vision of digital reading and social interaction among the new generations in China Growing up under the background of social transformation cultural integration and technological progress digital reading of the Chinese net generation presents complex characteristics People born in the 1980s and 90s are better educated have democratic consciousness and have strong motivations for self expression Meanwhile reading behaviours affect their content production virtual identities and socialization in the real world The immense need for digital content fuels the digital reading industries Internet literature social media articles reading apps and e reader devices have also benefited from media content and interface innovation in the market This book provides a solid scientific foundation for reading promotion and guiding strategies in the context of digital media and offers empirical evidence for policy formulation of reading promotion and spiritual civilization in the digital age The authors expand the perspective of communication studies on digital reading and analyze how the youth reads on digital devices and creates content for interest or profit The book will be a great read for students and scholars of mass communication media studies and digital publishing

Reading and Language Processing John M. Henderson, Murray Singer, Fernanda Ferreira, 2013-11-19 This volume was designed to identify the current limits of progress in the psychology of reading and language processing in an information processing framework Leaders in their fields of interest the chapter authors couple current theoretical analyses with new formally presented experiments The research cutting edge and sometimes controversial reflects the prevailing analysis that language comprehension results in numerous levels of representation including surface features lexical properties linguistic structures and idea networks underlying a message as well as the situations to which a message refers As a group the chapters highlight the impact that input modality auditory or written has on comprehension Finally the studies also capture the evolution of new topic matter and ongoing debates concerning the competing paradigms global proposals and methods that form the foundation of the enterprise The book presents current accounts of research on word sentence and text processing It will prove informative for experimental psychologists as well as investigators in cognitive science disciplines such as computer science linguistics and educational psychology The book will also be very helpful to graduate students who wish to develop expertise in the psychology of language processes For them it collects in a single volume readings that are representative of progress concerning many central problems in the field As such it is distinct from the numerous collected volumes that concentrate on a single issue Complete author and subject indexes facilitate effective use of the volume
