of our solar system is one of humanity's greatest scientific achievements. The last fifty years in particular have seen huge steps forward in our understanding of the planets, the sun and other objects in the solar system. Whilst planetary science is now a mature discipline involving geoscientists, astronomers, physicists and others, many profound mysteries remain and there is indeed still the tantalizing possibility that we may find evidence of life on another planet in our system. Drawing upon the latest results from the second golden age of Solar System exploration, author Peter Bond provides an authoritative and up-to-date account of the planets, satellites and smaller debris that orbit the Sun. Written in an informal style with minimal use of mathematics, this book is the ideal introductory text for non-science students and other readers with little or no science background. With the aid of numerous illustrations, many in full colour, this exciting book brings to life the weird and wonderful worlds that populate our corner of the Universe. This book assumes no background in physics, astronomy or mathematics. Carefully explains key concepts. Gives balanced coverage to areas of controversy or uncertainty in planetary science. Is in full color throughout and richly illustrated. An interview with Peter can be found at <http://wisciblog.com> 2012-02-28 exploring the solar system

Special Military Operations Handbook United States. Air Traffic Service, 1981 by United States. Introduction to sonar United States. Bureau of Naval Personnel, 2018-09-29 SONAR sound navigation and ranging systems have many similarities to RADAR and electro-optical systems. Again, detection is based on the propagation of waves between the target and detector. There are active sonar systems where the wave propagates from the transmitter to the target and back to the receiver, analogous to pulse echo radar. There are also passive sonar systems where the target is the source of the energy which propagates to the receiver, analogous to passive infrared detection. Therefore, a great deal of what has been discussed about these systems will also apply to sonar. Sonar, however, differs fundamentally from radar and electro-optics because the energy is transferred by acoustic waves propagating in water. So we first begin by discussing the characteristics of acoustic waves
