

"You're not the prettiest girl I ever saw, you're not the best singer I ever heard, and you're certainly not the best actress I ever hope to see, but if we put them all together we'll find the husband we're looking for on the stage."

—Mother

Only the likes of a lady with talent, determination, and a twinkle in her eye could live with that less than lustreous prophecy. Enter Kitty Carlisle Hart—singer, movie star, actress, "To Tell the Truth" panelist, public servant, and wife of the brilliant playwright/director Moss Hart. Told with great warmth and wit, KITTY takes us to Europe in the twenties, Hollywood in the thirties, the worlds of vaudeville and the theatre, the White House, and into the private life of the Hart family.

In her early movies she crooned with Bing Crosby and performed with the Marx Brothers in A Night at the Opera.
Then there were the Washington days, lunching with Mrs. Roosevelt and performing for FDR. (Later she was a regular guest of the Kennedys, the Johnsons, the Carters, and the ragans.) Tenderly and touchingly, we see the impressionable Kitty falling (literally at his feet) for Moss Hart—but it is magic and their incredible closeness could end much too early, leaving a devastated Kitty and two children to begin anew. Against a backdrop of humour and glitter, we are privy to her shrewd perceptions of people and events. She relates anecdotes about George Gershwin, Sinclair Lewis, Anny Kays, Bernard Baruch (when asked how to make a lot of money, he answered, "Work hard"), Rex Harrison, Neddy Allen, and many, many more.

And as we share Kitty's enthusiasm for her most recent achievement as chairman of the New York State Council on the Arts, what emerges is a zest for life that transcends stage or song; that is, most wonderfully, KITTY.

Becoming Roman? Ralph Haeussler, 2016-06-16 Few empires had such an impact on the conquered peoples as did the Roman empire creating social economic and cultural changes that erased long standing differences in material culture languages cults rituals and identities But even Rome could not create a single unified culture Individual decisions introduced changes in material culture identity and behavior creating local cultures within the global world of the Roman empire that were neither Roman nor native The author uses Northwest Italy as an exemplary case as it went from a marginal zone to one of the most flourishing and strongly urbanized regions of Italy while developing a unique regional culture This volume will appeal to researchers interested in the Roman Empire as well as those interested in individual and cultural identity in the past
