Learning to Speak Keith W. Clements, 2011-06-13 Churches and ecumenical bodies are often criticized for saying too much or too little on social and political affairs But how can churches speak out on such affairs How can churches participate effectively Keith Clements questions the present preoccupation with making statements which not only presupposes that a church has ready made answers but is also symptomatic of modern Western society's obsession with publicity and instant solutions to what are often complex problems Clements examines such historically famous statements as the German Barmen Declaration of 1934 and the South African Kairos Document of 1985 before exploring the biblical and theological roots of the key motifs of prophecy and discipleship He suggests that Western churches must continue to listen and learn not least from the way churches in regions such as South Africa the Middle East and Eastern Europe are relearning their roles Clements concludes that Western churches must be prepared to talk modestly They must be prepared to be both more disciplined and more imaginative They must also be prepared to be more theological Drawing on a wide range of sources Catholic and Protestant contemporary and historical Clements points the way forward for a Christian community learning to speak in the world and to the world

The Social Gospel Today Christopher Hodge Evans, 2001-01-01 The contributors explore how the theological tradition of the Social Gospel born within the social and cultural dislocations of late 19th century America relates to the dislocations of the current American scene The contributors argue that America's only indigenous theological tradition remains powerfully relevant to mainline churches and to the scholars who work out of these institutions
