Control and Communication in the Animal and the Machine by Norbert Wiener is a seminal work that laid the foundation for the field of cybernetics. This book is widely regarded as one of the most influential contributions to the study of systems, communication, and control mechanisms across biological, mechanical, and computational domains. The book is dense with mathematical formulations and examples but also includes conceptual discussions accessible to non-specialists. It begins with an introduction to the core principles and gradually moves into detailed applications and implications. In an era where systems thinking and artificial intelligence are central to innovation, Cybernetics remains a cornerstone for understanding how systems operate, communicate, and adapt. Its emphasis on feedback loops and interdisciplinary approaches continues to resonate in both theoretical and practical contexts. Cybernetics, Or Control and Communication in the Animal and

Cybernetics or Control and Communication in the Animal and the Machine, Reissue of the 1961 second edition Norbert Wiener, 2019-10-08 A classic and influential work that laid the theoretical foundations for information theory and a timely text for contemporary information theorists and practitioners. With the influential book Cybernetics first published in 1948, Norbert Wiener laid the theoretical foundations for the multidisciplinary field of cybernetics: the study of controlling the flow of information in systems with feedback loops, be they biological, mechanical, cognitive, or social. At the core of Wiener's theory is the message: information sent and responded to. Feedback: the functionality of a machine, organism, or society depends on the quality of messages. Information corrupted by noise prevents homeostasis or equilibrium. And yet Cybernetics is as philosophical as it is technical, with the first chapter devoted to Newtonian and Bergsonian time and the philosophical mixed with the technical throughout. This book brings the 1961 second edition back into print with new forewords by Doug Hill and Sanjoy Mitter. Contemporary readers of Cybernetics will marvel at Wiener's prescience: his warnings against noise, his disdain for hucksters and gadget worshipers, and his view of the mass media as the single greatest capture the eye and spark the imagination The Will to Predict Eglė Rindzevičiūtė, 2023-05-15 In The Will to Predict Eglė Rindzevičiūtė demonstrates how the logic of scientific expertise cannot be properly understood without knowing the conceptual and institutional history of scientific prediction. She notes that predictions of future population economic growth environmental change and scientific and technological innovation have shaped much of twentieth and twenty first century politics and social life as well as government policies. Today such predictions are more necessary than ever as the world undergoes dramatic environmental political and technological change. But she asks what does it mean to predict scientifically? What are the limits of scientific prediction and what are its effects on governance institutions and society? Her intellectual and political history of scientific prediction takes as its example twentieth century USSR. By outlining the role of prediction in a range of governmental contexts from economic and social planning to military strategy she shows that the history of scientific prediction is a transnational one part of the history of modern science and technology as well as governance. Going beyond the Soviet case Rindzevičiūtė argues that scientific predictions are central for organizing uncertainty through the orchestration of knowledge and action. Bridging the fields of political sociology organization studies and history The Will to Predict considers what makes knowledge scientific and how such knowledge has impacted late modern governance.

This book provides a consolidated and concise overview of SCCA in a single volume for the first time focusing on ontological epistemological social impact ethical and general philosophical issues. It is appropriate for use in engineering courses as a convenient tutorial source providing fundamental conceptual and educational material on these issues or for independent reading by students and scientists. Included in the book is Background material on philosophy and systems theory. Major ontological epistemological societal and ethical philosophical aspects of the four fields that are considered in the book. Over 400 references and a list of 130 additional books in the relevant fields. Over 100 colored photos and 70 line figures that illustrate the text. Between Human and Machine David A. Mindell, 2003-04-30 Today we associate the relationship between feedback control and computing with Norbert Wiener's 1948 formulation of cybernetics. But the theoretical and practical foundations for cybernetics control engineering and digital computing were laid earlier between the two world wars. shows how the modern sciences of systems emerged from disparate engineering cultures and their convergence during World War II Mindell examines four different arenas of control systems research in the United States between the world wars naval fire control the Sperry Gyroscope Company the Bell Telephone Laboratories and Vannevar Bush's laboratory at MIT Each of these institutional sites had unique technical problems organizational imperatives and working environments and each fostered a distinct engineering culture Each also developed technologies to represent the world in a machine At the beginning of World War II President Roosevelt established the National Defense Research Committee one division of which was devoted to control systems Mindell shows how the NDRC brought together representatives from the four pre war engineering cultures and how its projects synthesized conceptions of control communications and computing By the time Wiener articulated his vision these ideas were already suffusing through engineering They would profoundly influence the digital world As a new way to conceptualize the history of computing this book will be of great interest to historians of science technology and culture as well as computer scientists and theorists Between Human and Machine Feedback Control and Computing before Cybernetics
