Types and Events of Disasters Organization in Various Disaster Situations R. Frey, P. Safar, 2012-12-06 F A Bauhofer Geneva In disaster situations the particular concern of WHO is not so much to offer immediate relief and assistance for affected communities but to have ready prepared plans for the provision of primary medical care as well as for resuscitation and casualty services Disasters are characterized by a need for rapid assistance and by the inability of affected communities to cope with the large scale mortality morbidity and damage to essential installations and homes In some highly elaborate and centralized societies even small scale events may assume the proportion of a disaster if they result in the serious break down of vital services The Executive Board of the World Health Organization has defined disasters or emergencies as situations where there are unforeseen serious and immediate threats to public health Particularly severe disasters may be classified as catastrophes such occurrences whether natural or man made disturb or overthrow the existing order For planning purposes it is important to distinguish between different types of catastrophes since they require special relief measures In the past medical assistance was primarily needed in epidemics of for example plague cholera and smallpox Today health authorities face emergency problems brought about by major accidents and outbreaks of chemical pollution and poisoning which may have long term effects The role of health services may differ quite extensively in different types of catastrophes and an attempt must be made to draw up specific plans to deal with them

Disaster, Governance and Development Mohammad Tarikul Islam, 2023-05-12 This book unveils the nexus between disaster governance and development with a particular focus on Bangladesh and examines the legislative and institutional aspects in mainstreaming disaster risk reduction into development planning With the help of rich content analysis interpreting disaster management history of the country it looks at the challenges associated with disaster management in the context of Bangladesh The book highlights the most reasonable strategy on how to accelerate a paradigm shift from relief culture to DRR culture It also assesses the viewpoint of how political economy influences governance and institutional strengthening thus identifying obstructions and opportunities for mainstreaming disaster management into development The book also lays emphasis on collaboration between public sector and private sector for the expansion of disaster risk reduction programme It shows how multilevel governance works for professionalizing disaster management and throws light on policy frameworks developed This book is a tremendous resource for scholars practitioners and researchers of disaster management environmental studies development agencies political science public policy development studies governance regional development South Asian studies and local government particularly those interested in disaster governance and sustainable development

Emergency and Disaster Medicine C. Manni, S.I. Magalini, 2012-12-06 C Manni The focusing of general interest and of many disciplines on disaster medicine is an interesting and recent phenomenon in our society Disasters have by now left the historical and philosophical sphere and finally entered the operational arena Modern man in other words no longer accepts disasters in a passive and fatalistic manner but claims to be able to control them like so many other forces of nature The new approach is aimed at preventing containing and remedying the invariably tragic consequences of these events The role of medicine in this context is of fundamental importance and is characterized by two main aspects application of techniques of intervention appropriately and effectively and collaboration with the general organization assuming responsibility for the protection of health and the treatment of injuries Following a period of more or less chaotic growth during which sectionalism and empirical interests prevailed and localized aspects of this new discipline underwent considerable development a need is now felt to propose and realize a more comprehensive scientific approach It has become necessary to identify and to rationally analyze the individual components of this branch of medicine As in any analysis the recognition of the object of the research is of fundamental importance hence the title of this first round table
