

Growing Old Gracefully

Subi Nathivarman 2019

Strands of silver in the hair
Marks the crosses we had to bear

Rings of black around the eyes
Echoes of the lows and the highs

Advent of wrinkles and crows feet
Shows the travel in sun and sleet

Loss of weight and skinny frame
Shows the stress of winning the game

Creaking knees, aches and pains
Reminder of youth breaking reins

Glasses residing on the nose
Helps eyes to see life's throws.

All signs that time is flying
Glad to say that am not crying

But proud that these are signs
Of a life well lived that always shines.

What next as the years go by
Not rest on laurels and let time fly

Untangle this knot of being alive
Make sense of helping others thrive

Have a laugh and goof around
Look within for something profound

So much to do, before time runs out
To explore and find before we fade out

Ageing Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Science and Technology Committee,2005-07-21 In the 2001 census there were more people over 65 than under 16 for the first time and 20 per cent of the UK population is expected to be over 65 years of age by 2020 Consideration of this trend normally looks negatively at the economic costs and social problems involved rather than the biological and psychological processes and so this report approaches the subject from a scientific perspective Firstly it examines the demographic background Then it considers why and how ageing occurs the ageing process and the natural degeneration of the human body and mind over time and looks at those diseases which are particularly prevalent in old age There are exciting developments in biological research into the causes of ageing and into what can be done to slow the adverse effects of the ageing process and improve the quality of life of older people In the case of the individual diseases which predominantly affect older people research is also showing promising avenues of development in prevention and treatment Next the report examines the environmental challenges assistive technology and the failure of industry to seize the opportunity to exploit the underdeveloped market that the elderly represent The Committee comments here on the failure to apply existing technologies rather than the pace of new developments The report also covers management by the Government of health in old age both for the individual and for society as a whole and the strategic direction and coordination of ageing related research It finds that research is being inhibited by two main factors which are the responsibility of the Government the treatment of the scientific aspects of ageing as very much the junior partner in any consideration of older people and a lack of coordination in particular between the research councils
