Agrarian Studies Ebays On Agrarian Relations In Lebdeveloped Countries:

Agrarian Studies V. K. Ramachandran, Madhura Swaminathan, 2003 Most people in developing countries are still rural their lives and work bound up with the relations of agricultural production The policies of stabilization and structural adjustment of the 1980s and 1990s have had wide ranging and profound implications for their conditions of life and work This work brings together theoretical and empirical research into agrarian relations and explores what is happening to rural societies in the current phase of global capitalism The contributors cover a wide range of issues and experiences including the effectiveness and reliability of different types of land reform the macroeconomic context of liberalized trade and mobile financial flows country specific changes in agrarian relations in the context of globalization and the nature of and constraints on land reforms in the contemporary period While the specific concerns and historical processes of each country and region are different there are common concerns and worries especially with regard to the impact on rural working people of new policies of globalization and liberalization Explaining Agricultural and Agrarian Policies in Developing Countries Hans P. Binswanger, Hans P. Binswanger-Mkhize, Klaus W. Deininger, 1997 New Directions in Agrarian Political Economy Ryan Isakson, 2017-10-02 How relevant are the classic theories of agrarian change in the contemporary context This volume explores this question by focusing upon the defining features of agrarian transformation in the 21st century the financialization of food and agriculture the blurring of rural and urban livelihoods through migration and other economic activities forest transition climate change rural indebtedness the co evolution of social policy and moral economies and changing property relations Combined the eleven contributions to this collection provide a broad overview of agrarian studies over the past four decades and identify the contemporary frontiers of agrarian political economy In this path breaking collection the authors show how new iterations of long evident processes continue to catch peasants and smallholders in the crosshairs of crises and how many manage to face these challenges developing new sources and sites of livelihood production This volume was published as part one of the special double issue celebrating the 40th anniversary of the Journal of Peasant Studies Agrarian Reform in Contemporary Developing Countries Ajit Kumar Ghose, 2010-11-29 Initially published in 1983 in association with the International Labour Organisation ILO this book is about the meaning relevance and process of agrarian reform in contemporary developing countries It includes seven detailed case studies one each on Ethiopia Peru Chile Nicaragua Iran Kerala India and West Bengal India In all the cases serious contemporary efforts were made to implement agrarian reform programmes and the case studies focus upon selected aspects of this reform process origins basic characteristics problems of implementation and immediate consequences Each region differs considerably in terms of socio economic and administrative conditions but when the reform efforts are placed in their respective historical contexts several common themes emerge which are dealt with in detail In all cases it is clear that agrarian reform is essentially a political process requiring major social movements and that piecemeal reforms will not solve the grave problems of growth

Agrarian structures and agrarian reform S.I. Cohen, 2012-12-06 This study is an attempt to contribute to our understanding of one of the most important reforms currently advocated by development economists to reduce rural poverty in developing countries land reform Dr Cohen has based his study on models in which three social groups are acting these for brevity's sake are called land lords peasants and the groups who comprise the non agricultural sector Peasants include the so called landless peasants which western countries generally term agrarian workers The method can be extended to larger numbers of groups The actors are involved in various activities including production consumption and saving the latter being available either for physical or for financial investment This implies that various wealth components appear in the model alongside flows of goods and services Use is made of determinate models with linear and non linear equations of a dynamic character The models are employed to estimate socio economic development under alternative regimes Regimes differ on the one hand according to which group is in power and on the other hand according to the instruments of economic policy they use It is an attractive feature of Dr Cohen's study that the models are applied to two countries for which all the necessary statistical material has been estimated India and Chile For both countries a brief socio political sketch precedes the numerical application of the models For India five instruments of socio economic policy are considered land transfers measures to stimulate productivity credit policies taxes and tenure and wage regulations

Market-Led Agrarian Reform Saturnino Borrás Jr., Cristóbal Kay, Edward Lahiff, 2013-09-13 Three fourths of the world's poor are rural poor Most of the rural poor remain dependent on land based livelihoods for their incomes and reproduction despite significant livelihood diversification in recent years Land issue remains critical to any development discourse today Market led agrarian reform MLAR has gained prominence since the early 1990s as an alternative to state led land reforms This neoliberal policy is based on the inversion of what its proponents see as the features of earlier approaches and calls for redistribution via privatized decentralized transactions between willing sellers and willing buyers Its proponents especially those associated with the World Bank have claimed success where the policy has been implemented but such claims have been contested by independent scholars as well as by peasant movements who are struggling to gain access to land This book presents three thematic papers and six country studies The thematic papers address issues of formalisation of property rights gendered land rights and neoliberal enclosure These studies demonstrate the pervasive influence of neoliberal ideas on property rights and rural development debates well beyond the core question of land redistribution The country cases bring together experiences from Brazil Guatemala El Salvador Philippines South Africa and Egypt Common findings include the success of landowners in minimising the impact of reform and a lack of post transfer support translating into marginal impact on poverty The limitations of the market led approach and the implications of the studies presented here for the future of agrarian reform are considered in the editors introduction This book was a special issue of The Third World Quarterly Agrarian Structure and Productivity in Developing Countries R.
