Africa: A review of the past with lessons for the future Nin-Pratt, Alejandro, El-Enbaby, Hoda, Figueroa, Jose Luis, ElDidi, Hagar, Breisinger, Clemens, 2017-12-31 The agriculture sector is key for economic and social development but the sector's potential has not received enough attention from policy makers and stakeholders in the Middle East and North Africa MENA region Political transitions instability and the resulting refugee crisis have shifted focus away from other pressing development challenges including slow progress in economic diversification high unemployment and persistent high food insecurity and rural poverty Despite its small contribution to GDP agriculture is strategic for sustainable development in the MENA countries Agriculture for example is central to achieve food and water security in a region characterized as one of the most food insecure and water scarce in the world The sector's role in employment is also central given the region's high structural unemployment However it will not be possible for MENA countries to develop agriculture without a pathway to structural economic transformation The region has already started the process of transformation but longstanding challenges remain This report aims to examine the drivers constraints and social implications of agricultural development in MENA and to explore possible cornerstones for new and sustainable development strategies in the context of economic transformation More specifically the report provides answers to the following questions What development strategies and policies did governments in MENA put in place over the past three decades and how did they affect the performance of agriculture How did the structural characteristics of the MENA countries affect agricultural development and the economic transformation process in the region What did we learn from the past performance of agriculture What should be the central elements guiding future agricultural policies What are elements of a new and sustainable development strategy in MENA countries What is the role of agriculture and agro industries for development in MENA

The Agricultural Development of the Middle East Bernard Augustus Keen, 1946 This report was produced for the Middle East Supply Centre an institution set up by the British in 1941 to supply and or keep supplies for basic life needs open to populations in the Middle East over which Britain had control This is the first in a series of four The second volume is on non agricultural scientific surveys of the Middle East This report identifies problems for agricultural development including social factors scientific and technical problems such as soil quality and farmer information about new techniques

Women in Agriculture in the Middle East Pnina Motzafi-Haller, 2017-03-02 Based on a collaborative research project an exciting fruit of the region's peace process this book provides an in depth examination and comparison of women's participation in agricultural production in four Middle Eastern countries Egypt Jordan Palestine and Israel Each of the country studies is set in context providing an overview of the status of women in the national economy and society and in education and law before proceeding to analyze the status and roles of women in the rural sector These up to date overviews are based on published and unpublished data much of which is available for the first time in English But the book can also be read as a fascinating story of the way gender is introduced into a complex political setting where development work is done It offers a reflexive critical examination of the very process of its own production and some general observations about the links between academic and development centred discourses

Man, Food and Agriculture in the Middle East American university of Beirut, 1969 Increasing Resilience to Climate Change in the Agricultural Sector of the Middle East Dorte Verner, 2013-04-04 This publication aims to assist countries in understanding the specific challenges and opportunities posed by climate change in the agricultural sector in order to increase climate resilience and adapt to climate change The report presents local level priorities informed by stakeholder input to build agricultural resilience in both countries The objectives of this study are threefold 1 to improve the understanding of climate change projections and impacts on rural communities and livelihoods in selected regions of Jordan and Lebanon specifically the Jordan River Valley and Lebanon s Bekaa Valley 2 to engage local communities farmers local experts and local and national government representatives in a participatory fashion in helping craft agricultural adaptation options to climate change and 3 to develop local and regional climate change action plans that formulate recommendations for investment strategies and strategic interventions in local agricultural systems Therefore this publication may serve as the analytical underpinning for ongoing discussions taking place within the governments including the Ministries of Agriculture and Environment on how to best move forward in building agricultural resilience to climate change Food Dependency

in the Middle East and North Africa Region Chantal Le Mouël, Bertrand Schmitt, 2018-09-10 This volume covers the Middle Eastern and North African regions who are increasingly dependent on imports from abroad for covering their domestic food needs Results of this study show that this import dependence is likely to increase further by 2050 Some sub regions hardly reach sustainable levels the Maghreb Near and Middle East could import 60 to 70% of their food needs These results are indicative whatever the considered scenario but especially if climate change impacts become more severe
