BASKETMAKING FROM THE BEGINNING

By Lura LaBarge

A photograph of various woven baskets and weaving tools. In the center is a large, light-colored woven basket filled with colorful yarn balls (yellow, blue, red, and white). To its left is a small, shallow, round woven basket with a red and white geometric pattern. In front of the large basket is a small, cylindrical woven basket with a blue and yellow pattern. To the right of the large basket is a larger, shallow, oval-shaped woven basket. In the foreground, there are two more small woven items: a cylindrical one with an orange and white pattern and a small, round, flat one with a white and brown pattern. All these items are resting on a surface covered with many dark, dried leaves.

Liddy,2003 This account of the archaeology of a cave in southern New Mexico makes a dramatic contribution to the ongoing debate over how long human beings have lived in the Americas The findings presented here show that human settlement may go back as far as 75 000 years before the present whereas the long accepted Clovis dates showed humans only about 12 000 years ago MacNeish and his colleagues subjected the cave its environs and its contents to rigorous interdisciplinary investigation The first section of this volume comprises their reports on the changing environment of the area The second section concentrates on the excavation of the cave s layers presenting the results of radiocarbon dating and describing the evidence of human occupation including friction skin prints and human hair The third section discusses the cultural implications of the materials recovered and suggests how the ancient peoples may have exploited the changing environment and developed different ways of life throughout the Americas before the time of Clovis man No serious discussion of early inhabitants in the New World can disregard the findings presented in this monumental work of scholarship Sprouting Valley James R. Welch,2013-05-10 In the mid nineteenth century the indigenous Potter Valley Pomo resided in large sedentary villages in Potter Valley California and travelled seasonally throughout an extensive territory in what are now Mendocino and Lake Counties Beginning in 1890 what would become nearly a half century of ethnographic research among members of this community homeopathic doctor and amateur anthropologist John W Hudson witnessed the aftermath of their dislocation and dispersal from the valley following the arrival of non indigenous settlers Although never published his fieldnotes contained an unparalleled dataset on plant use by a single local indigenous community in California In this richly illustrated monograph the author presents and interprets this historical ethnobotanical information in order to provide new insights into Potter Valley Pomo society and its relationship to the Northern California landscape U.S. Geological Survey Circular ,1984 The Cumulative Book Index ,1976 A world list of books in the English language
