Time Honored John H.

Stubbs,2009-01-14 The absence heretofore of a comparably thoroughgoing but accessible resource on a topic of such urgent public concern was a glaring lapse that makes this deeply researched lucidly written and helpfully annotated book an invaluable addition to the literature New York Review of Books Time Honored is a comprehensive survey of the practice theory and structure of architectural heritage conservation throughout the world Offering an argument for why architectural conservation is indispensable to modern life Time Honored describes its parameters and evolution in an historical context and then methodically presents approaches used in various countries showing how historic preservation in the West differs from conservation in the rest of the world Illustrated throughout with over 300 photographs drawings maps and charts No other book navigates the global conservation programs policies and project types so completely Narrative Theory in Conservation Nigel Walter,2020-03-11 Narrative Theory in Conservation engages with conservation heritage studies and architectural approaches to historic buildings offering a synthesis of the best of each and demonstrating that conservation is capable of developing a complementary but distinct theoretical position of its own Tracing the ideas behind the development of modern conservation in the West and considering the challenges presented by non Western practice the book engages with the premodern understanding of innovation within tradition and frames historic buildings as intergenerational communal ongoing narratives Redefining the appropriate object of conservation it suggests a practice of conserving the questions that animate and energize local cultures rather than only those instantiated answers that expert opinion has declared canonical Proposing a narrative approach to historic buildings the book provides a distinctive new theoretical foundation for conservation and a basis for a more equal dialogue with other disciplines concerned with the historic environment Narrative Theory in Conservation articulates a coherent theoretical position for conservation that addresses the urgent question of how historic buildings that remain in use should respond to change As such the book should be of great interest to academics researchers and postgraduate students from the fields of conservation heritage studies and architecture Building Conservation Philosophy John Earl,Andrew Saint,2015-12-08 This is a book about ideas rather than techniques Public thirst for visible evidence of the past is not as it is often represented a recent phenomenon It was already well developed when an overseer of ancient monuments was appointed in sixth century Rome But if the desire to preserve aspects of the past is to do more than respond to popular whims and fashions or represent the personal views of ivory towered scholars and specialists it needs to have some kind of solid logical basis Philosophical questions are raised at every turn On what basis can buildings be singled out as historic buildings demanding special protection On what authority can we justify interfering with private property rights in pursuing such protective processes And how should we judge what is acceptable and unacceptable in the treatment of the buildings we value In this third substantially revised edition the author examines the nature of monuments and the varied motives for preserving them He traces the history of movements to preserve old buildings and the furious conflicts that have frequently surrounded restoration campaigns Philosophical problems arising in modern conservation practice including such controversial issues as skin deep preservation and the use of substitute materials are considered in detail More space is devoted in this edition to contextual issues New sections deal with issues of sustainability and the relationship of buildings to the townscape and landscape The number of illustrations has also been greatly increased The book is designed especially for students approaching the subject for the first time but may well be found stimulating by practitioners No easy formulae are offered What conservators have to nurture the author insists is an inquiring and self critical frame of mind enabling them to proceed from comprehensive knowledge of the buildings for the time being in their care via logical argument to defensible if not inevitable solutions

Materials and Skills for Historic Building Conservation Michael Forsyth, 2013-02-05 This book is the third in a series of volumes that combine conservation philosophy in the built environment with knowledge of traditional materials and structural and constructional conservation techniques and technology Understanding Historic Building Conservation Structures Construction in Historic Building Conservation Materials Skills for Historic Building Conservation The series aims to introduce each aspect of conservation and to provide concise basic and up to date knowledge for architects surveyors and engineers as well as for commissioning client bodies managers and advisors In each book Michael Forsyth draws together chapters by leading architects structural engineers and related professionals to reflect the interdisciplinary nature of conservation work The books are structured to be of direct practical application taking the reader through the process of historic building conservation and emphasising throughout the integrative teamwork involved The present volume Materials Skills for Historic Building Conservation describes the characteristics and process of decay of traditional materials which inform the selection of appropriate repair techniques It provides essential information on the properties of the principal traditional external building materials Their availability sourcing and environmental impact is covered as well as the causes of erosion and decay and the skills required for their application on conservation projects It covers the main most commonly used materials and conservation techniques including stone brickwork lime products concrete iron and steel timber wattle and daub and glass Thirteen chapters written by the experts present today's key issues in materials and skills for historic building conservation Gus Astley Patrick Baty Charley Brentnall Michael Bussell Michael Forsyth Tony Graham Chris Harris David McLaughlin Brian Ridout Mike Stock Geoff Wallis Ian Williams Rory Young

International Heritage and Historic Building Conservation Zeynep Aygen, 2013 The majority of books in English on historic building conservation and heritage preservation training are often restricted to Western architecture and its origins Consequently the history of building conservation the study of contemporary paradigms and case studies in most universities and within wider interest circles predominantly in the UK Europe and USA focus mainly on Europe and sometimes the USA although the latter is often excluded from European publications With an increasingly multicultural student body in Euro American universities and with a rising global interest in heritage preservation there is an urgent need for publications to cover a larger geographical and social area including not only Asia Australia Africa and South America but also previously neglected countries in Europe like the new members of the European Community and the northern neighbour of the USA Canada The inclusion of the other in built environment education in general and in building conservation in particular is a pre requisite of cultural interaction and widening participation International Heritage and Historic Building Conservation assesses successful contemporary conservation paradigms from around the world The book evaluates conservation case studies from previously excluded areas of the world to create an integrated account of Historic Building Conservation that crosses the boundaries of language and culture and sets an example for further inclusive research Analyzing the influence of financial constraints regional conflicts and cultural differences on the heritage of disadvantaged countries this leading edge volume is essential for researchers and students of heritage studies interested in understanding their topics in a wider framework
