Consolidating Active And Reserve Component Training Infrastructure:

Consolidating Active and Reserve Component Training Infrastructure John Frederic Schank, 1999 Examines ways to consolidate training infrastructure and augment capabilities across components to gain efficiency Consolidating Active and Reserve Component Training Infrastructure, 1999 This report presents the results of a research project entitled Evolution of the Total Army School System The project examines ways to consolidate training infrastructure and augment capabilities across Army components to gain efficiency and achieve economies of scale in conducting individual training of Active Component AC and Reserve Component RC soldiers It provides a quantitative approach for determining how the Army might benefit from such changes as offering reclassification training and noncommissioned officer NCO education to AC soldiers at RC schools and additional training courses to RC soldiers at AC schools using the area of maintenance training as an example If the Army found these benefits worth pursuing this approach could be adapted and extended to support policy decisions to further integrate its training infrastructure in additional functional areas Holding the Line Cindy Williams, 2001 An objective and detailed look at the American defense budget and military strategy EPA Publications Bibliography Quarterly Abstract Bulletin United States. eliminating jobs currently held by military personnel However rather than reducing end strength levels DoD indicates the positions are expected to be reassigned to other areas which may enhance capabilities but also limit dollar savings available for other use7 Department of Defense Authorization for Appropriations for Fiscal Years 1992 and 1993: Manpower and

Reserve Component Programs United States. Reserve Forces Policy Board,1989 Rebuilding the Schoolhouse ,2001 Competition for scarce resources both dollars and soldiers has driven the Army to explore ways to reduce the costs and infrastructure needed to conduct military education and training Resources devoted to military education and training are substantial in FY00 the Active Component training institutions cost the Army 5.7 billion to run and absorbed 44 500 staff and 74 000 trainee man years The Army not only wants to reduce the resources it devotes to the training base it also seeks to improve the performance of its schools To achieve these goals the Army has undertaken various initiatives to restructure and modernize its individual training system including for example establishing the Total Army School System and The Army Distance Learning Program TADLP The task is a tough one improve performance while reducing resources The range of strategies the Army could pursue complicates the task Which of them offer the best chance for success RAND Arroyo Center has examined the Army's recent initiatives along with a number of others and its analysis suggests that four strategies could help the Army achieve its goal 1 Integrate Active AC and Reserve Component RC training institutions 2 Expand the use of educational technologies in Army schools 3 Leverage flexible distance learning technologies and 4 Increase the use of the private sector in Army training 3 figures 10 refs Report of
