Constructing Experience Charles Bazerman, 1994 Presenting a powerful action oriented view of language that finds meaning in local circumstances and local uses Bazerman divides his essays into four parts beginning with an examination of the classroom experience

Self-Construction in a Transcultural Context Yijia Zuo, 2022-07-16 This book explores the ways in which individuals construct and integrate self positions in a transcultural context by adopting a pluralist theoretical and methodological approach that includes both Western post modern viewpoints and ancient Chinese philosophical ideas The book starts with stories of two second generation Chinese young people and their mothers life experiences in the UK which can be seen as an epitome of individuals living in the modern and complex environment of the time Using social constructionist viewpoints it then analyzes the overt interaction between the individual and outside environment and interprets the recessive interaction such as the individual s psychological response to the outside environment which might be unknown to him or herself using the psychodynamic approach based on object relations theory and other psychoanalytic concepts such as defense mechanisms The book uses Confucian philosophy to show how Chinese people think about the relation between other people and themselves and also integrates different and even opposing theories and viewpoints from Taoist philosophy This creative book provides a theoretical and practical approach to explore the conception of self and the way in which individuals construct their self positions in a complex context Combining cutting edge Western psycho social viewpoints and ancient Chinese philosophy it appeals to readers interested in self psycho social approaches psychoanalytic viewpoints and Chinese philosophy

The Literary Construction of the Other in the Acts of the Apostles Mitzi J. Smith, 2011-01-01 Too often the negative characterization of others in the biblical text is applied to groups and persons beyond the text whom we wish to define as the Other Otherness is a synthetic and political social construct that allows us to create and maintain boundaries between them and us The other that is too similar to us is most problematic This book demonstrates how proximate characters are constructed as the Other in the Acts of the Apostles Charismatics Jews and women are proximate others who are constructed as the external and internal Other

Constructing Postmodernism Brian McHale, 1992 Postmodernism is not a found object but a manufactured artifact Beginning from this constructivist premise Brian McHale develops a series of readings of problematically postmodernist novels Joyce s Ulysses Pynchon s Gravity s Rainbow and Vineland Eco s The Name of the Rose and Foucault s Pendulum the novels of James McElroy and Christine Brooke Rose avant garde works such as Kathy Aker s Empire of the Senseless and works of cyberpunk science fiction by William Gibson Bruce Sterling Lewis Shiner Rudy Rucker and others Although mainly focused on high or elite cultural products Constructing Postmodernism relates these products to such phenomena of postmodern popular culture as television and the cinema paranoia and nuclear apocalypse angelology and the cybernetic interface and death now as always the true Final Frontier McHale s previous book Postmodernist Fiction Routledge 1987 seemed to propose a single all inclusive inventory of postmodernist poetics This book by contrast proposes multiple overlapping and intersecting inventories not a construction of postmodernism but a plurality of constructions Publisher description

The Construction of Mental Representations During Reading Herre van Oostendorp, Susan R. Goldman, 1998-11-01 This volume presents in depth investigations of the processes of meaning making during reading at both local discourse and global general knowledge levels It considerably extends our knowledge of how mental representations are constructed and updated during reading The book also provides insight into the process of representation construction by using online measures and relating this process with final memory representations provides detailed models of these processes pays attention to the coordination of multiple representations constructed focuses on the monitoring and updating of mental representations and applies all this knowledge to richer and more complicated texts than are often used in laboratories

Object-Oriented Construction Handbook Heinz Züllighoven, Robert F. Beeger, 2005 Object oriented programming OOP has been the leading paradigm for developing software applications for at least 20 years Many different methodologies approaches and techniques have been created for OOP such as UML Unified Process design patterns and eXtreme Programming Yet the actual process of building good software particularly large interactive and long lived software is still emerging Software engineers familiar with the current crop of methodologies are left wondering how does all of this fit together for designing and building software in real projects This handbook from one of the world's leading software architects and his team of software engineers presents guidelines on how to develop high quality software in an application oriented way It answers questions such as How do we analyze an application domain utilizing the knowledge and experience of the users What is the proper software architecture for large distributed interactive systems that can utilize UML and design patterns Where and how should we utilize the techniques and methods of the Unified Process and eXtreme Programming This book brings together the best of research development and day to day project work The strength of the book is that it focuses on the transition from design to implementation in addition to its overall vision about software development Bent Bruun Kristensen University of Southern Denmark Odense

Reading Nuruddin Farah F. Fiona Moolla, 2014 The Somali novelist Nuruddin Farah is one of the most important African writers today The central question that this book investigates is the relationship between modern identity and the novel as a genre Nuruddin Farah's novels are shown by Moolla to encompass the history of the novel from the proto realism of the acclaimed From a Crooked Rib to the modernism of A Naked Needle and the postmodernism of most notably Maps returning almost full circle with his most recent novel Crossbones Moolla examines his writing within the framework of Somali society and culture Islamic traditions and political contexts all of which are central themes in his work She also addresses Farah's engagement with women's lives his female characters and identities being at the heart of rather than peripheral to his stories something that has distinguished him from many other male African writers The book finally suggests that through his literary negotiation of the central contradiction of modern identity Farah comes close to constituting a subject who no longer is transcendently homeless but finds a home everywhere a fitting project for a writer who has been in exile for the greater part of his life F Fiona Moolla is a Senior Lecturer in the Faculty of Arts at the University of the Western Cape in South Africa as well as a freelance writer and published author of short stories South Africa and Zimbabwe pb only Blue Weaver

History and the Construction of the Child in Early British Children's Literature Jackie C. Horne, 2016-04-22 How did the flat characters of eighteenth-century children's literature become round by the mid-nineteenth century? While previous critics have pointed to literary Romanticism for an explanation Jackie C. Horne argues that this shift can be better understood by looking to the discipline of history Eighteenth-century humanism believed the purpose of history was to teach private and public virtue by creating idealized readers to emulate Eighteenth-century children's literature with its impossibly perfect protagonists and its equally imperfect villains echoes history's exemplar goals Exemplar history however came under increasing pressure during the period and the resulting changes in historiographical practice an increased need for reader engagement and the widening of history's purview to include the morals, manners, and material lives of everyday people find their mirror in changes in fiction for children Horne situates hitherto neglected Robinsonades, historical novels, and fictionalized histories within the cultural, social, and political contexts of the period to trace the ways in which idealized characters gradually gave way to protagonists who fostered readers' sympathetic engagement Horne's study will be of interest to specialists in children's literature, the history of education, and book history

The Making of an Expert Engineer James

Trevelyan,2014-09-22 This book sets out the principles of engineering practice knowledge that has come to light through more than a decade of research by the author and his students studying engineers at work Until now this knowledge has been almost entirely unwritten passed on invisibly from one generation of engineers to the next what engineers refer to as experience This is a book for all engineers It distils the knowledge of many experts in one volume The book will help engineers enjoy a more satisfying and rewarding career and provide more valuable results for their employers and clients The book focuses on issues often seen as non technical in the world of engineering yet it shows how these issues are thoroughly technical Engineering firms traditionally have sought expert advice on these aspects from management schools often regarding these aspects of engineering practice as something to do with psychology or organisational behaviour The results are normally disappointing because management schools and psychologists have limited insight and understanding of the technical dimensions in engineering work Little if any of the material in this book can be obtained from management texts or courses Management schools have avoided the technical dimension of workplace practices and that is precisely what characterises engineering practice The technical dimension infuses almost every aspect of an engineer s working day and cannot be avoided That s why this book is so necessary there has not yet been any authoritative source or guidance to bridge the gap between inanimate technical issues and organisational behaviour This book fills this gap in our knowledge is based on rigorous research and yet is written in a style which is accessible for a wide audience

Advances in Experimental Social Psychology,1980-01-18 Advances in Experimental Social Psychology Operating Systems (Self Edition

Varelas, 2012-12-17 In this edited volume science education scholars engage with the constructs of identity and identity construction of learners teachers and practitioners of science Reports on empirical studies and commentaries serve to extend theoretical understandings related to identity and identity development vis vis science education link them to empirical evidence derived from a range of participants educational settings and analytic foci examine methodological issues in identity studies and project fruitful directions for research in this area Using anthropological sociological and socio cultural perspectives chapter authors depict and discuss the complexity messiness but also potential of identity work in science education and show how critical constructs such as power privilege and dominant views access and participation positionality agency structure dialectic and inequities are integrally intertwined with identity construction and trajectories Chapter authors examine issues of identity with participants ranging from first graders to pre service and in service teachers to physics doctoral students to show ways in which identity work is a vital albeit still underemphasized dimension of learning and participating in science in and out of academic institutions Moreover the research presented in this book mostly concerns students or teachers with racial ethno linguistic class academic status and gender affiliations that have been long excluded from or underrepresented in scientific practice science fields and science related professions and linked with science achievement gaps This book contributes to the growing scholarship that seeks to problematize various dominant views regarding for example what counts as science and scientific competence who does science and what resources can be fruitful for doing science Making Sense Ralf Hertel, 2021-07-26 Fiction is fascinating All it provides us with is black letters on white pages yet while we read we do not have the impression that we are merely perceiving abstract characters Instead we see the protagonists before our inner eye and hear their voices Descriptions of sumptuous meals make our mouths water we feel physically repelled by depictions of violence or are aroused by the erotic details of sexual conquests We submerge ourselves in the fictional world that no longer stays on the paper but comes to life in our imagination Reading turns into an out of the body experience or rather an in another body experience for we perceive the portrayed world not only through the protagonist s eyes but also through his ears nose tongue and skin In other words we move through the literary text as if through a virtual reality How does literature achieve this trick How does it turn mere letters into vividly experienced worlds This study argues that techniques of sensuous writing contribute decisively to bringing the text to life in the reader's imagination In detailed interpretations of British novels of the 1980s and 1990s by writers such as John Berger John Banville Salman Rushdie Jeanette Winterson or J M Coetzee it uncovers literary strategies for turning the sensuous experience into words and for conveying it to the reader demonstrating how we make sense in and of literature Both readers interested in the contemporary novel and in the sensuousness of the reading experience will profit from this innovative study that not only analyses the interest of contemporary authors in the senses but also pin points literary entry points for the sensuous force of reading
