Constructing Reality:

Constructing Reality Piero Mella, 2020-06-10 This brief presents an overview of Gregory Bateson's Constructivist method of Cognition Bateson proposes a theory of cognition that is based on the abstract notion of difference that the mind distinguishes and perceives and represents information that constitutes and separates how different states are ordered grouped and classified Bateson however does not clearly indicate how a cognitive system can develop a knowledge of reality from the perception of these differences This book seeks to offer a scientific approach to Constructivism Using Bateson's hypothesis chapters discuss how our mind distinguishes and elaborates differences allowing us to form perceptions of objects and how these objects can be described and compared Chapters also discuss how from differences it is possible to construct concepts or ideas of how these can be defined and how to derive from these differences the meanings of the signs used for the structuring of languages The brief offers a coherent structure of propositions that form an interpretative theory of the modus operandi of the human mind which will be useful not only in shedding light on our cognitive processes but also in laying the formal groundwork for artificial intelligence Constructing Reality is a must have resource for researchers and students of the cognitive sciences as well as education sciences and researchers and scholars of artificial intelligence learning theory and intelligent automata programming

(Re)constructing Reality Linda Stump Rashidi, 2005 Among the most brilliant fictional works of the twentieth century Lawrence Durrell's Alexandria Quartet is at once a culmination of modernist literature and an exploration of the conscious construction of truth and reality Structured to reflect Einstein's relativity theory the Alexandria Quartet is an intricate interweaving of linguistic resources Using M A K Halliday's systemic linguistic theory of text analysis Re constructing Reality probes the inner workings of Durrell's masterpiece to bring us closer to an understanding of how meaning is created In the process this book provides insight into both the Alexandria Quartet itself as well as into the linguistic nature of literary composition

Constructing Reality in Comparative Theology Paul S Chung, 2023-01-01 In contemporary Western society the church has been pushed to the margins leading experts to describe the current era as a time after Christendom Many traditional churches and congregations are struggling a condition worsened by the COVID 19 pandemic regulations As the practice of churchgoing wanes the performance of the sacrament is called into question How can we bring the traditional communal experience of sacrament into the modern world How Black Disadvantaged Adolescents Socially Construct Reality Loretta J. Brunious,1998 In a pilot study applying Berger and Luckmann's social construction of reality framework Brunious Loyola U Chicago elicits perceptions about school popular culture and mass media from 20 Chicago inner city black teens Refuting the still prevalent myth that poor African American youth suffer The Technological Construction of Reality Dionysios S. Demetis,Ian O. Angell,2024-07-05 This visionary book delves into the world shaping abilities of modern technology outlining the potential future transformations that it may impose By drawing from a range of scholarly insights Dionysios S Demetis and Ian O Angell explore how technology not only influences our social economic political biological and physical realities but how it can also construct completely new ones Software Development and Reality Construction Christiane Floyd,Heinz Züllighoven,Reinhard Budde,Reinhard Keil-Slawik,2012-12-06 The present book is based on the conference Software Development and Reality Construction held at SchloB Eringerfeld in Germany September 25 30 1988 This was organized by the Technical University of Berlin TUB in cooperation with the German National Research Center for Computer Science GMD Sankt Augustin and sponsored by the Volkswagen Foundation whose financial support we gratefully acknowledge The conference was an interdisciplinary scientific and cultural event aimed at promoting discussion on the nature of computer science as a scientific discipline and on the theoretical foundations and systemic practice required for human oriented system design In keeping with the conversational style of the conference the book comprises a series of individual contributions arranged so as to form a coherent whole Some authors reflect on their practice in computer science and system design Others start from approaches developed in the humanities and the social sciences for understanding human learning and creativity individual and cooperative work and the interrelation between technology and organizations Thus each contribution makes its specific point and can be read on its own merit But at the same time it takes its place as a chapter in the book along with all the other contributions to give what seemed to us a meaningful overall line of argumentation This required careful editorial coordination and we are grateful to all the authors for bearing with us throughout the slow genesis of the book and for complying with our requests for extensive revision of some of the manuscripts Creating a Constructed Reality Pasquale De Marco,2025-04-08 In this thought provoking book we take a journey into the laboratory the crucible in which scientific knowledge is forged to explore the social and cultural factors that shape scientific research Drawing on interviews with scientists observations of laboratory life and historical studies of science we provide readers with a comprehensive understanding of the inner workings of the scientific community We begin by examining the social world of the laboratory a place where scientists from diverse backgrounds come together to collaborate and compete We explore the norms and values that govern the scientific community and the ways in which these norms and values influence the production of scientific knowledge We also consider the role of the scientist a unique individual who is both a seeker of truth and a master of manipulation Next we turn our attention to the scientific method the systematic process by which scientists investigate the natural world We examine the steps of the scientific method from observation and hypothesis formation to experimentation and data analysis We also discuss the importance of replication the process of repeating an experiment to confirm its results No discussion of science would be complete without considering the scientific community In this section we explore the structure and norms of the scientific community and the ways in which these factors influence the production of scientific knowledge We also examine the process of peer review the system by which scientists evaluate each other's work Finally we turn our attention to the future of science We consider the challenges and opportunities facing the scientific community and the ways in which science is likely to change in the years to come We also discuss the ethical challenges of science and the need for scientists to be mindful of the potential consequences of their work This book is essential reading for anyone interested in the social and cultural dimensions of science It is also a valuable resource for scientists policymakers and anyone else who wants to understand the complex relationship between science and society If you like this book write a review

Pragmatism and Sociology Emile Durkheim, 1983-04-21

The Construction of Social Reality John R.

Searle, 2010-05-11 This short treatise looks at how we construct a social reality from our sense impressions at how for example we construct a five pound note with all that implies in terms of value and social meaning from the printed piece of paper we see and touch In The Construction of Social Reality eminent philosopher John Searle examines the structure of social reality or those portions of the world that are facts only by human agreement such as money marriage property and government and contrasts it to a brute reality that is independent of human agreement Searle shows that brute reality provides the indisputable foundation for all social reality and that social reality while very real is maintained by nothing more than custom and habit

The Mediated Construction of Reality Nick Couldry, Andreas Hepp, 2018-03-15

Social theory needs to be completely rethought in a world of digital media and social media platforms driven by data processes Fifty years after Berger and Luckmann published their classic text The Social Construction of Reality two leading sociologists of media Nick Couldry and Andreas Hepp revisit the question of how social theory can understand the processes through which an everyday world is constructed in and through media Drawing on Sch tz Elias and many other social and media theorists they ask what are the implications of digital media's profound involvement in those processes Is the result a social world that is stable and liveable or one that is increasingly unstable and unliveable

The Creation of Reality in Psychoanalysis

Richard Moore, 2013-06-17 It has become almost de rigueur in contemporary psychoanalysis to cite Freud's positivism especially his commitment to an objective reality that can be accessed through memory and interpretation as a continuing source of weakness in bringing the field into the postmodern era But is it so simple to move beyond Freud and objectivism in general Or is it the case that even the most astute recent theorizing aimed at this move and guided by therapeutic sensitivity and a concern with epistemic rigor still betrays a lingering commitment to objective reality This is the intellectually exciting and exacting question that Richard Moore poses to his reader and to the texts of four of the most influential psychoanalytic theorists on the scene today Donald Spence Roy Schafer Robert Stolorow and Irwin Z Hoffman Written with concentration and grace The Creation of Reality in Psychoanalysis begins with the ambiguities in Freud's founding commitment to a recoverable objectively verifiable reality before examining the ghost of objectivism that confounds in surprising and unexpected ways Spence's Schafer's Stolorow's and Hoffman's recent attempts to move toward narrativist and constructivist views of the analytic encounter Following his penetrating survey of the contributions of these four major architects of contemporary psychoanalysis Moore provides a glimpse of what an internally consistent postmodern metapsychology would actually look like He approaches this task by exploring how our understanding of basic analytic concepts may ultimately be reconciled with the view that the creation of reality is an intrinsic aspect of any therapeutic encounter Elegantly conceived and beautifully argued this book guides the reader through the labyrinth of contemporary theory while holding fast to a critical stance toward its overarching goal the elaboration of a truly thoroughgoing constructivism that is both therapeutically consequential and intellectually defensible

Searle,1996-09-26 In this fascinating provocative account eminent philosopher John Searle shows how our everyday actions and cultural knowledge are of a metaphysical complexity that is truly staggering He explores the character of the structures of our daily work that exist by human agreement and from this the nature of objective reality For example how can it be completely objective fact that coins are money if something is money only because we believe it is money And what is the role of language constituting such facts In examining the difference between what can and what cannot be socially constructed he also shows how biology which offers facts that are independent of human opinion and is often seen in opposition to the social sciences forms the basis of these cultural and constitutional forms
