Constructing Incompetence:

Constructing (in)competence Dana Kovarsky, Madeline Maxwell, Judith F. Duchan, 2013-06-17 Competence and incompetence are constructs that emerge in the social milieu of everyday life. Individuals are continually making and revising judgments about each other's abilities as they interact. The flexible, situated view of competence conveyed by the research of the authors in this volume is a departure from the way that competence is usually thought about in the fields of communication disabilities and education. In the social constructivist view, competence is not a fixed mass residing within an individual or a fixed judgment defined externally. Rather, it is variable, sensitive to what is going on in the here and now, and coconstructed by those present. Constructions of competence are tied to evaluations implicit in the communication of the participants as well as to explicit evaluations of how things are going. The authors address the social construction of competence in a variety of situations: engaging in therapy for communication and other disorders; working and living with people with disabilities; speaking a second language; living with deafness; and giving and receiving instruction. Their studies focus on adults and children, including those with disabilities, aphasia, traumatic brain injury, augmentative systems users, as they go about managing their lives and identities. They examine the all-important context in which participants make competence judgments, assess the impact of implicit judgments and formal diagnoses, and look at the types of evaluations made during interaction. This book makes an argument all helping professionals need to hear: institutional, clinical, and social practices promoting judgments must be changed to practices that are more positive and empowering.

The Local Construction of a Global Language Joseph Sung-Yul Park, 2009-04-07 In South Korea, English is a language of utmost importance, sought with an unprecedented zeal as an indispensable commodity in education, business, popular culture, and national policy. This book investigates how the status of English as a hegemonic language in South Korea is constructed through the mediation of language ideologies in local discourse. Adopting the framework of language ideology and its current developments, it is argued that English in Korean society is a subject of deep-rooted ambiguities with multiple and sometimes conflicting ideologies coexisting within a tension-ridden discursive space. The complex ways in which these ideologies are reproduced, contested, and negotiated through specific metalinguistic practices across diverse sites ultimately contribute to a local realization of the global hegemony of English as an international language. Through its insightful analysis of metalinguistic discourse in language policy debates, cross-linguistic humor, television shows, and face-to-face interaction, The Local Construction of a Global Language makes an original contribution to the study of language and globalization, proposing an innovative analytic approach that bridges the gap between the investigation of large-scale global forces and the study of micro-level discourse practices.

Handbook of Communication in Organisations and Professions Christopher N. Candlin, Srikanth Sarangi, 2011-08-29 This volume presents major contributions of Applied Linguistics to the understanding of communications in the professions. The first two parts of this book deal with the theoretical and methodological orientations

Passive Patient Culture in India Supriya Subramani,2025-03-21 In a society shaped by deep inequalities where healthcare and legal systems often reinforce class caste religion and gender hierarchies this book offers a powerful examination of patienthood in India Through its critical approach it seeks to disrupt binaries such as universalistic and particularistic values and data versus theory while decentering normative discourses by foregrounding lived experiences within the context It offers philosophical and conceptual insights that extend far beyond local variations and contexts challenging dominant narratives in global discourses on medical decision making and concepts such as informed consent autonomy and respect This book critiques the archetype of the passive patient entrenched in both medicine and law in India an image that undermines agency diminishes self respect and sustains a culture of disrespect Chapters of the book unpacks the intersections of power social categories and patienthood exposing how marginalized communities face everyday indignities in healthcare and law It explores law and medicine s role in maintaining presumed passive patient archetype especially through legal judgements and healthcare encounters This book advocates for reimagining patienthood as centered on self respect recognition and agency arguing that the passive patient is not an isolated phenomenon but an outcome of broader oppressive structures Contributing to robust debates in medical sociology bioethics and social justice this book is essential reading for those interested in the intersections of these fields along with applied ethics health services research and law This book is freely available as downloadable Open Access PDFs at <http://www.taylorfrancis.com> under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives CC BY NC ND 4 0 license

Conduct Helmut Lethen, 2002-03-27 Lethen brilliantly interprets New Objectivity as a tactical response to the need for a code of conduct in an age of anxiety about values and normative judgments Moving effortlessly between analysis of philosophical texts and literary works he charts an increasingly popular field of cultural studies how cultural discourses shape behavior One of the most original and daring contributions to Weimar scholarship and to the study of modernity in general in a decade Anton Kaes University of California Berkeley Lethen is probably the most original and outstanding scholar writing in German today about Weimar literature and culture He traces the figure of the cold persona as part of a broader discourse of anthropological ethical and aesthetic dimensions The book is written in a personal voice witty lucid and unpretentious Miriam Hansen University of Chicago Embodied Rhetorics James C. Wilson, Cynthia

Lewiecki-Wilson, 2001 Presenting thirteen essays editors James C Wilson and Cynthia Lewiecki Wilson unite the fields of disability studies and rhetoric to examine connections between disability education language and cultural practices Bringing together theoretical and analytical perspectives from rhetorical studies and disability studies these essays extend both the field of rhetoric and the newer field of disability studies The contributors span a range of academic fields including English education history and sociology Several contributors are themselves disabled or have disabled family members While some essays included in this volume analyze the ways that representations of disability construct identity and attitudes toward the disabled other essays use disability as a critical modality to rethink economic theory educational practices and everyday interactions Among the disabilities discussed within these contexts are various physical disabilities mental illness learning disabilities deafness blindness and diseases such as multiple sclerosis and AIDS Post-Construction Liability and

Insurance J. Knocke, 2003-09-02 With the single European market and the growing internationalisation of the work of architects engineers and contractors it is important for professionals to be aware of the liability provisions of legal systems around the world An essential reference for lawyers and insurance companies especially in construction law and insurance this is required reading for construction professionals involved in international work The Social Construction of

Intellectual Disability Mark Rapley, 2004-06-10 Intellectual disability is usually thought of as a form of internal individual affliction little different from diabetes paralysis or chronic illness This study the first book length application of discursive psychology to intellectual disability shows that what we usually understand as being an individual problem is actually an interactional or social product Through a range of case studies which draw upon ethnomethodological and conversation analytic scholarship the book shows how persons categorized as intellectually disabled are produced as such in and through their moment by moment interaction with care staff and other professionals Troubled Minds Arne S. Steinforth, 2009

Every society has its own definition of a normal and an abnormal human condition For persons living with mental disorders these concepts have a tremendous impact This study investigates how the abnormal mind is culturally defined in Mala i South Eastern Africa Based on anthropological techniques such as interviews participant observation and archive research it explores the different social dimensions of mental disorder e g its reflection in traditional dance rituals in behavioural rules during pregnancy or in the healing ministry of independent churches It demonstrates how local explanations of mental disorder be it witchcraft an angry ancestor or the will of God determine the social acceptance of an affected person s condition Recent processes of cultural change however strengthen the pluralism of Mala ian religious landscape opening the local debate to an ever wider range of interpretations Construction Management Chris March,2017-03-28
