R. Ellis, Allison L. C. Emmerson, Kevin D. Dicus, 2023-07-04 This is the first of four volumes that present the results from the University of Cincinnati's archaeological excavations of the Porta Stabia neighborhood at Pompeii These excavations targeted two town blocks on either side of the via Stabiana insulae VIII 7 and I 1 which comprised modest houses shops workshops food and drink outlets and hospitality buildings The present volume describes and documents the phased structural development of this neighborhood over several centuries The earliest discernible activity here dates to the 6th century BCE with the insulae taking their definitive shape only in the 2nd century BCE It is from this time that production activities dominate the neighborhood only to be wholly replaced by retail oriented street fronts from the early 1st century CE Underpinning this narrative of urban development is a focus on the social and structural making of the Porta Stabia neighborhood along with an interest in both the micro urban site formation processes and macro contextualization of the site setting the results within a larger historic and urban framework

Environmental Protection Agency,United States. Environmental Protection Agency. Office of Water,1993 Mesoamerican Plazas Kenichiro Tsukamoto,Takeshi Inomata,2014-04-10 Until now archaeological and historical studies of Mesoamerican plazas have been scarce compared to studies of the surrounding monumental architecture such as pyramidal temples and palaces Many scholars have assumed that ancient Mesoamericans invested their labor wealth and symbolic value in pyramids and other prominent buildings viewing plazas as by products of these buildings Even when researchers have recognized the potential significance of plazas they have thought that plazas as vacant spaces could offer few clues about their cultural and political roles Mesoamerican Plazas challenges both of these assumptions The primary question that has motivated the contributors is how Mesoamerican plazas became arenas for the creation and negotiation of social relations and values in a community The thirteen contributions stress the significance of interplay between power relations and embodied practices set in specific historical and material settings as outlined by practice theory and performance theory This approach allows the contributors to explore broader anthropological issues such as the negotiation of power relations community making and the constitution of political authorities Overall the contributions establish that physical interactions among people in communal events were not the outcomes of political machinations held behind the scenes but were the actual political processes through which people created negotiated and subverted social realities If so spacious plazas that were arguably designed for interactions among a large number of individuals must have also provided critical arenas for the constitution and transformation of society Tailings Dam Safety / Sécurité des Barrages de Stériles ICOLD CIGB,2025-04-28 ICOLD Bulletin 194 Tailings
