

ECONOMICS

INTERPRETING THE DECISIONS OF PEOPLE, COMPANIES AND GOVERNMENTS

Why study Economics?

Discover how people and societies use their resources. Use data to make better business decisions and learn about the impact of individual economic choices. Build an in-depth understanding of the way local, national and global economies function.

What is Economics?

Economics is the science of decision-making and the key to unlocking how the world works – from the consumption of goods and services, to changes in employment rates or living standards.

Economics is at the heart of how society operates and it impacts how we spend, save, work and live. Economics requires thinking about problems in a logical and rigorous way and making informed decisions about the various economic issues we face every day.

In our information-rich world, the tools and analysis of economics can be applied across many different disciplines and are an important skill for breaking down large amounts of information and explaining data in a business environment.

By understanding the costs and benefits of decisions made by individuals, organisations and governments, a knowledge of economics is essential for a career in business, where big-picture thinking and tangible quantitative skills provide a competitive edge in the work place.

Where will it take you?

Professional economists are employed as policy makers and researchers in the private and public sectors and in international organisations.

Gain employment in:

- Academia
- Banks and financial service firms
- Government
- International organisations
- Public opinion and marketing agencies
- Research units of private firms
- Welfare organisations

Economics graduates are also suited for leadership positions in industry and government. It is possible to combine economics with a Bachelor of Laws and work in legal or government regulation fields.

Many economics graduates join government agencies such as the State or Federal Treasury, the Reserve Bank of Australia, the Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade, the Australian Competition and Consumer Commission and the Productivity Commission.
