Cyborg Ethnography:

Cyborgs@Cyberspace? David Hakken, 2002-06-01 Arguing that humans have always been technological as well as cultural beings David Hakken calls for a fundamental rethinking of the traditional separation of anthropology and technical studies Drawing on three decades of research on contemporary technological societies this book outlines a fresh way of thinking about technology and offers an ethical and political response to the challenge of truly living as cyborgs in the age of cyberspace

The Gendered Cyborg Fiona Hovenden, Linda Janes, Gill Kirkup, Kathryn Woodward, 2013-09-13 The Gendered Cyborg explores the relationship between representation technoscience and gender through the metaphor of the cyborg The contributors argue that the figure of the cyborg offers ways of thinking about the relationship between culture and technology people and machines which disrupt the power of science to enforce the categories through which we think about being human male and female Taking inspiration from Donna Haraway's groundbreaking Manifesto for Cyborgs the articles consider how the cyborg has been used in cultural representation from reproductive technology to sci fi and question whether the cyborg is as powerful a symbol as is often claimed The different sections of the reader explore the construction of gender categories through science the interaction of technoscience and gender in contemporary science fiction film such as Blade Runner and the Alien series debates around modern reproductive technology such as ultrasound scans and IVF assessing their benefits and constraints for women issues relating to artificial intelligence and the internet

Ethnography for the Internet Christine Hine, 2020-05-11 The internet has become embedded into our daily lives no longer an esoteric phenomenon but instead an unremarkable way of carrying out our interactions with one another Online and offline are interwoven in everyday experience Using the internet has become accepted as a way of being present in the world rather than a means of accessing some discrete virtual domain Ethnographers of these contemporary Internet infused societies consequently find themselves facing serious methodological dilemmas where should they go what should they do there and how can they acquire robust knowledge about what people do in through and with the internet This book presents an overview of the challenges faced by ethnographers who wish to understand activities that involve the internet Suitable for both new and experienced ethnographers it explores both methodological principles and practical strategies for coming to terms with the definition of field sites the connections between online and offline and the changing nature of embodied experience Examples are drawn from a wide range of settings including ethnographies of scientific institutions television social media and locally based gift giving networks

Cyborg Selves Jeanine Thweatt-Bates, 2016-05-13 What is the posthuman? Is becoming posthuman inevitable, something which will happen to us, or something we will do to ourselves? Why do some long for it while others fearfully reject it? These questions underscore the fact that the posthuman is a name for the unknown future and therefore not a single idea but a jumble of competing visions, some of which may be exciting, some of which may be frightening, and which is which depends on who you are and what you desire to be. This book aims to clarify current theological and philosophical dialogue on the posthuman by arguing that theologians must pay attention to which form of the posthuman they are engaging and to demonstrate that a posthuman theology is not only possible but desirable when the vision of the posthuman is one which coincides with a theological vision of the human      Posthumanism Fouad Sabry, 2023-07-02

What Is Posthumanism The concept of posthumanism also spelled post humanism is a response to the anthropocentrism that is prevalent in 21st century thought It can be found in continental philosophy and critical theory It incorporates a wide range of subfields including the following

Antihumanism is a school of thought that takes a scathing stance against traditional humanism and the established canon of thought concerning the human condition life and agency

Cultural posthumanism is a subfield of cultural theory that is critical of the foundational assumptions of humanism and the legacy that it has left behind It investigates and questions the historical notions of human and human nature frequently challenging typical notions of human subjectivity and embodiment and it seeks to move beyond archaic concepts of human nature in order to develop ones that are constantly adapting to contemporary technological and scientific knowledge

Philosophical posthumanism is a philosophical path that draws on cultural posthumanism The philosophical strand investigates the ethical consequences of broadening the circle of moral concern and extending subjectivities beyond the human species

Philosophical posthumanism is a philosophical direction that draws on cultural posthumanism The deconstruction of the human condition as carried out by critical thinkers is referred to as the posthuman condition

Posthuman transhumanism is an ideology and movement that aspires to develop and make available technology that permit immortality and vastly enhance human intellectual physical and psychological capacities in order to attain a posthuman future This ideology and movement draws from posthumanist philosophy

AI takeover refers to a sub genre of transhumanism in which the goal is not to augment humans but rather to eventually replace them with artificial intelligences As a result of a technological singularity some philosophers and theorists including Nick Land advocate for the position that human beings ought to welcome and be at peace with their own impending extinction as a natural consequence of the phenomenon This is connected to the philosophy known as cosmism which advocates for the development of powerful artificial intelligence even if it would result in the extinction of humanity This is because in their opinion it would be a cosmic tragedy if humanity freezes evolution at the puny human level which describes the current state of human evolution

Voluntary Human Extinction is an ideology that advocates for a posthuman future which in this context refers to a future devoid of human beings
