Three Perspectives: Jewish, Christian, and Muslim

Steven H. Propp, 2009-12-30 You're Jewish aren't you? This blunt question is the way that college freshman Richard Cohn is introduced to an outspoken fellow student named Dov Epstein who calls himself a Messianic Jew and believes that God has a special purpose for the Jewish people in these Last Days. Raised by secular Jewish parents, Richard is completely oblivious to his own Jewish background until this ongoing dialogue forces him to confront his own heritage. The two young men vigorously argue with each other over the interpretation of the Hebrew Bible, particularly its reputed predictions of a Messiah. Christian doctrines such as the Trinity and most significantly about the identity and significance of Jesus of Nazareth. The rigorous process of self-examination this initiates leads Richard to embrace his Jewish identity even as he vehemently denies the same for Dov. The two ultimately become fast friends but as they progress from an academic environment to the professional world, they are challenged by racist statements made by prominent national figures, anti-Semitic doctrines such as Christian Identity which teaches that white Anglo Saxons are the true Israel, and also purported scholars who deny the reality of the Holocaust itself. Circumstances in life connect them with a young Iranian migrant named Jahangir Khatami whose Muslim beliefs conflict strongly with their own. Yet when a violent incident brings the three of them together, they are forced to reexamine not just their differences but their similarities. While they clash over the ideals of Zionism and its ramifications in the modern State of Israel, they are united in their horror over the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001. Join a diverse cast of characters, some of whom appeared in the author's earlier book Beyond Heaven and Earth in a probing exploration that may help you reconsider just what it means to be Jewish, Christian, or Muslim in the modern world. Dachau Marcus J. Smith, 2012-02-01 Marcus Smith was the sole medical officer attached to a small displaced person (DP) team that was sent to the Dachau concentration camp the day after it was liberated by Allied troops and several days before the shocking conditions of the camp were publicized throughout the world. Several years after his experience at Dachau, believing that we must never forget what happened, Smith unearthed his notes and the daily letters he wrote to his wife and used them as source materials for Dachau: The Harrowing of Hell. From the perspective of a young physician, Smith describes his experiences, shedding light on the immense difficulties and complexities of the large-scale tasks the small DP team completed against great odds to combat epidemic diseases and starvation and repatriate the former prisoners. Smith also describes some of the people the team tried to help: men, women, and children from all walks of life of many nationalities and religions. Smith tells his moving story objectively with simplicity and grace. While this book is the story of man's inhumanity to man, it is more than an account of Nazi persecution. It is about how Smith, whose previous experience had not prepared him for the immense horror of what he encountered at Dachau, quickly became a public health expert, how a small team improvised relief and combated a typhus epidemic, and how the soldiers of different countries had to get along with each other while dealing with the prejudices of Branko Sekulic introduces the concept of ethnoreligiosity to the theological discussion in order to resolve the confusion that occurs when scholars talk about the concepts of ethno religion or ethnoreligion Ethno religion ethnoreligion came to describe the phenomenon of ethnic religion as a certain cultural specificity and which by itself has no negative connotation but due to the lack of a better expression it has been used as a term for the phenomenon of ethnic and religious conflict and discrimination In that sense ethnoreligiosity can be defined as a phenomenon resulting from the usurpation of the religious aspect of human life by the ethnic one or more precisely it emerges as a consequence of an ethnic ethnonational ideological overtaking of the structures of the religious organization It takes place through the attempt to give sacral connotation to a particular ethnonational myth as an integral part of ethnonational ideology with the result that religious feeling is no longer generated on a religious but primarily on an ethnonational base By understanding the proper definition and manifestation of ethnoreligiosity one will have the opportunity to discern the basic components of this phenomenon not only within the countries of the former Yugoslavia but in other countries as well Indian Literature in English Satish Barbuddhe,2007
