Becoming an Industrialized Nation Yuan-li Wu, 1985 Becoming an Industrialized Nation Yuan Li Wu, 1985-10-15 Using Taiwan as a case study this book explores questions facing the developing nations How does a small nation short on natural resources manage to develop at a rapid rate conomically How does such a nation continue its high rate of economic development when its labor force is in general no longer inexpensive What are the relevant issues obstacles and advantages to be dealt with in newly industrialized economies How do the nation s public and private sector leaders see the increase in economic development for themselves The Role of the State in Taiwan's Development Joel D. Aberdach, 2015-05-20 These essays are a product of a co operative research project between American and Taiwanese social scientists Of particular interest is the chapter discussing a comparative study of industrial policy productivity growth and structural change in manufacturing Global Competitiveness and Industrial Growth in Taiwan and the Philippines Cheng-Tian Kuo, 2010-11-23 Kuo contrasts the economic evolutions of Taiwan and the Philippines as the product of government and industry relations The two nations shared many economic similarities yet Taiwan moved from clientelism to state corporatism while in the Philippines clientelism remains deeply entrenched Kuo s case studies in the textile plywood and electronics industries support these general arguments He finds that clientelism invariably leads to economic problems while a laissez faire approach is unpredictable The best formula for industrial success in a developing nation is close cooperation between business and government The Origins of the Developmental State in Taiwan J. Megan Greene, 2008-04-30 The rapid growth of Taiwan s postwar miracle economy is most frequently credited to the leading role of the state in promoting economic development Megan Greene challenges this standard interpretation in the first in depth examination of the origins of Taiwan s developmental state Greene examines the ways in which the Guomindang state planned and promoted scientific and technical development both in mainland China between 1927 and 1949 and on Taiwan after 1949 Using industrial science policy as a lens she shows that the state even during its most authoritarian periods did not function as a monolithic entity State planners were concerned with maximizing the use of Taiwan s limited resources for industrial development Political leaders on the other hand were most concerned with the state s political survival The developmental state emerged gradually as a result of the combined efforts of technocrats and outsiders including academicians and foreign advisors Only when the political leadership put its authority and weight behind the vision of these early planners did Taiwan s developmental state fully come into being In Taiwan s combination of technocratic expertise and political authoritarianism lie implications for our understanding of changes taking place in mainland China today Industrial Development in Singapore, Taiwan, and South Korea Kai-Sun Kwong, 2001 Economic analysis of the industrial experiences of the newly industrialized economies in Asia is generally lacking in the literature This study attempts to fill that void by providing an in depth discussion on the economic impact of the industrial policies of Singapore Taiwan and South Korea in the three and a half decades after 1960 Throughout the study a broad perspective of macroeconomic development is maintained It is highly critical of the narrow minded objective of certain governments in maximizing the pace of industrialization at the expense of general economic well being A comparative analysis of the industrial experiences of the three economies also shows a diversity of constraints and processes Singapore relied on multinational corporations Taiwan on returned engineers and South Korea on chaebols There appears to be no Asian formula for industrialization In Hong Kong there is an ongoing debate on whether some form of industrial policy should be introduced in view of the perception that Hong Kong is lagging behind the other economies in terms of technology Drawing on the experiences of the other economies the concluding chapter of the book provides an informed and balanced answer to this question Contents Singapore Dominance of Multinational Corporations Taiwan Thriving High Technology Industries and SME South Korea Government Led Development and the Dominance of Giant Corporations Comparison Among Singapore Taiwan and South Korea Strategic Considerations in the Hong Kong Context Readership Researchers policy makers and undergraduates in economics and East Asian Studies

Flexibility, Foresight and Fortuna in Taiwan's Development Steve Chan, Cal Clark, 2013-05-13 Using the developmental history of Taiwan as a starting point Flexibility Foresight and Fortuna critically examines several prevalent formulations of domestic development and international economy The authors examine Taiwan's policy performance from in turn the developmental the dependency the statist and the trade off perspectives on political economy They reject these approaches in favour of the key ideas of flexibility foresight and fortuna as an explanation of Taiwan's relatively unusual success in achieving domestic development and upward mobility in the international system

The Political Economy of Development in the Newly Industrializing Countries Jenn-Jaw Soong, 1991 Monetary Policy in Pacific Basin Countries Hang-Sheng Cheng, 2012-12-06 The chapters in this book are based on papers prepared for a conference organized by the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco held at the bank September 23 25 1987 to review and compare monetary policy experiences of Pacific Basin countries during the past 15 years The theme of the conference was conceived with two purposes in mind First there was and still is a great need to enhance knowledge on the workings of economies in the Pacific Basin which has been the fastest growing region in the world economy during the past 30 years While much has been written on Pacific Basin trade and economic growth relatively few studies have been published on the conduct of monetary policy in these economies Second as we in the United States and others elsewhere have learned rapid financial market changes over the last 15 years have led to considerable adjustment in the conduct of monetary policy A comparative study of various national experiences can yield insights into the inter actions between monetary policy and financial market changes more than is obtainable by examining individual national experiences separately Made by Taiwan Po-Lung Yu, Junyan Zhang, 2001 Many nations and states have tried to build successful technological industries but failed Taiwan is an exception Indeed it is the third largest production center for integrated circuits and personal computers How has Taiwan made it and how to do business successfully with Taiwan This book aims to provide answers to those questions and to share the successful experience of Taiwan with others If Taiwan could make it then other nations by learning from its experiences and patterns of development can also make it or even excel Taiwan The book presents historical and analytical views covering most aspects of Taiwan s development patterns including innovations of management and technology production and business infrastructures capital and human resources education and government policies and competitive characteristics of people and cultures Contents Overview The Development of Taiwan s IC Industry An Overview C Y Chang Management Innovation The Three Vs of Global Competitiveness H L Li Employee Profit Sharing and Stock Ownership Attracts World Class Employees A P Chen IC PC Industries The Integrated Circuit Industry A Technological Powerhouse C V Trappey IC Foundries A Booming Industry M C Wu Taiwan s IC Packaging Industry A Local Success Story Goes International P L Chang The Notebook Niche J H Huang Desktop PCs A Project Management Revolution C Yang Technical and Capital Innovation Competing in the Knowledge Game Intellectual Property Rights S J Liu Investment The Life Blood of Growth C Y Hung Education and Government Policy The Industrial Park Government s Gift to Industrial Development P L Chang Intellectual Capital in the Information Industry G H Tzeng Culture and People Five Life Experiences That Shape Taiwan s Character P L Yu C Y Chiang Lin Readership Students and researchers in economics and business management as well as business leaders and economic planners

Challenging Neoliberalism Cal Clark, Evelyn A. Clark, 2016-02-26 Neoliberalism which advocates free markets without government interference has become increasingly utilized and controversial over the last three and a half decades This book presents case studies of Chile and Taiwan two countries that seemingly prospered from adopting neoliberal strategies and finds that their developmental histories challenge neoliberalism in fundamental ways From one perspective the political economies of Chile and Taiwan might appear to be poster children for neoliberalism Both took aggressive policy actions Taiwan in the 1960s and Chile in the 1970s to create market driven economies that were well integrated into the capitalist global economy Subsequently these two countries were cited as economic miracles that opened their markets resulting in rapid economic growth and development A closer examination of the two nations however turns up very significant differences between them In particular Taiwan with its much more statist approach to development outperformed Chile by a considerable margin and some of the experiences of Chile departed markedly from neoliberal predictions The authors argue that Taiwan s strategy was the more successful of the two primarily because it discarded the ideology of neoliberalism and unfettered laissez faire Scholars educators and students studying globalization political economy and or economic development will find this book an irreplaceable addition to the discussion of neoliberalism
