Our ancestors were deeply aware of the magical power of their local landscape no matter where they lived
Every interaction with their environment from building to farming to the layout of ancient cities took into account terrestrial energies ancestral memory and the many seen and unseen presences in Nature
They developed sophisticated procedures for orienting their living spaces and respectfully working with the magic of the landscape
Yet much of the art of geomancy and of working with the forces of Nature has been forgotten by modern builders architects foresters gardeners and homeowners
The treatment of land as mere property has led to a loss of its meaning for those who dwell upon it
Our landscape has become disenchanted
In this book geomancy expert and scholar Nigel Pennick details the ancient and sacred practices of geomancy and Earth magic and reveals how we can reenchant and reconnect to the sacred landscape that surrounds us whether you live rurally in the suburbs or in cities Pennick begins with a vivid look at our modern wasteland and what he calls the ensouled world with specific examples from Britain and Iceland of our ancestors way of perceiving the world they lived in Exploring the art of geomancy he examines how its techniques work with ley lines astrology and the old understanding of the four directions and the eight winds to honor a space and make it a place of power
He looks at the power of boundaries and magic circles including laying ghosts and dismissing spirits as well as the proper feng shui for cemeteries and graveyards
The author then takes the reader back into the traditional landscape to discuss magically powerful places such as crossroads the occult nature of the fairground and the mystic triangles found in what are popularly known as no man s lands
Revealing how the landscape can be reenchanting Pennick shows how the magic of place is a living system that each of us can interact with
