Alcoholism A Family Matter:

Family Matters Peter Reder, Mike McClure, Anthony Jolley, 2005-08-19 Family Matters focuses on research and clinical material which bridges the traditional gap between child and adult mental health Rather than considering child and adult problems separately the authors address the often complex interactions between the two covering such topics as The implications of childhood trauma in later life The impact of parental mental health problems on children How interactions within a family can affect the mental health of all individuals within the family The authors review existing research and cover their own recent studies and practical experience and put forward new theoretical models to underpin their recommendations for changes in practice such as liaison initiatives between child and adult services and specialised services to treat adolescents parenting breakdown and perinatal psychiatric illness The findings and recommendations in Family Matters have important implications for the organisation and funding of mental health and related services and staff training and should be read by all those in professions concerned with child and adult mental health including psychiatrists family therapists psychotherapists nurses health visitors and social workers and health service managers Family matters

Deborah A. Lawlor, Gita D. Mishra, 2009-04-02 Family based studies including intergenerational sibling and twin studies are increasingly being used to explore life course epidemiology However there are issues relating to study design and the statistical analysis of family based studies that are still not well understood and comprehending the underlying assumptions of these studies and drawing the inferences from them can be complex This book provides the knowledge and skills required to design analyse and correctly interpret family based studies It explains what these studies can tell us about life course epidemiology provides practical guidance on how to set up and maintain birth cohorts for completing family based studies in life course epidemiology describes how to undertake appropriate statistical analyses of family based studies and correctly interpret results from these analyses and provides examples that illustrate the ways in which family based studies can enhance our understanding of life course epidemiology In addition there is discussion of difficulties specific to setting up such studies in low and middle income countries and issues relating to proxy informants where parents provide information on children and vice versa or siblings provide information about each other Examples of how family based studies have been used in understanding the life course epidemiology of cardiovascular disease mental health and reproductive health illustrate the applicability of the research to these areas but also more generally to the wider field of life course epidemiology
