Drugs for Relapse Prevention of Alcoholism Rainer Spanagel, Karl F. Mann, 2006-01-17 Alcoholism is a pathological behavioural syndrome characterised by compulsive alcohol use craving and relapses even recurring after many years of abstinence It is suggested that chronic alcohol abuse leads to persistent changes within several neurochemical pathways in the brain and furthermore that an imprinted drug and addiction memory may scarcely be extinguished Hence the question arises as to whether there ought to be a reasonable hope that pharmacological drugs will be developed that interfere with an addiction memory and as a result finally lead to a cure In this book leading preclinical and clinical experts in the field of alcohol relapse prevention strive to furnish an answer to this question None of the researchers or clinicians believes in a magic bullet that will be of help to all alcoholic patients in overcoming this disease However there is now convincing evidence demonstrating that specific subpopulations of alcoholic patients experience satisfactory benefit from currently available treatments Today we have two medications for relapse prevention on the market acamprosate and naltrexone Although currently only a minority of alcoholic patients benefit from these medications the approval of these compounds may be considered a hallmark in the field of psychopharmacology even comparable to the era when the first antidepressant compounds were introduced In recent years we have been witnessing an enormous growth in the science and knowledge regarding the field of relapse prevention
