Inquiry-based English Instruction Richard Beach, Jamie Myers, 2001-06-08 This valuable resource offers an alternative framework for middle and secondary school English instruction The authors

provide concrete strategies for engaging students in critical inquiry projects about the social worlds they inhabit or about those portrayed in literature and the media their peer school family romance community workplace and virtual worlds You will find numerous examples of middle and high school students using various literacy tools language genres narratives signs multimedia and drama to study represent critique and transform these worlds Rather than simply studying about literacy practices this new framework shows how students learn best through active participation driven by a need to critically examine and promote changes in their social worlds White Women Getting Real About Race Judith M. James, Nancy Peterson, 2023-07-03 For many White women teachers and teachers in training who represent the majority of our teaching force today the issue of race is fraught with discomfort It may challenge assumptions evoke a sense of guilt or give rise to a fear of making mistakes or saying the wrong thing This book presents the first person stories of White women teachers who tell us not only how they have grappled with race in diverse classrooms but how they continue to this day to be challenged by issues of color and privilege These are no stories of heroic feats or achievement of perfection but stories of self disclosure that lay bare their authors emotions ideas curiosity vulnerability and reflections as they engaged with race and challenged practices of color blindness and empathetic distance Avoiding abstract educational lingo these teachers come clean about the emotional cost of dealing with racism White privilege and fear of being racist in our rapidly diversifying schools Admitting their cultural mistakes they hope their readers can find a safe place to use theirs for honest dialogue and positive learning In approaching chapter authors for this book the editors asked the writers to ask themselves Will my well being and sense of self be at risk if I tell this story Recognizing what s at stake they wanted writers who would be real with themselves The women in this book hope that their stories will resonate with readers help them feel less alone and give them courage to begin a dialogue with colleagues friends staff and administrators around race concerns Each chapter concludes with a few questions to prompt self reflection at home or for use as exercises to use in small groups or staff development training

Talking About Race Steven Grineski, Julie Landsman, Robert Simmons III, 2023-07-03 What is it that gives many of us White people a visceral fear about discussing race Do you realize that being able to not think about or talk about it is a uniquely White experience Do you warn your children about how people might react to them find store staff following or watching you get stopped by the police for no reason The students of color in your classroom experience discrimination every day in small and large ways They don t often see themselves represented in their textbooks and encounter hostility in school and outside For them race is a constant reality and an issue they need and want to discuss Failure to do so can inhibit their academic performance Failure to discuss race prevents White students from getting a real critical and deep understanding of our society and their place in it It is essential for the well being of all students that they learn to have constructive conversations about the history of race in this country the impact of racism on different ethnic communities and how those communities and cultures contribute to society The need to model for our students how to talk openly and comfortably about race is critical in America today but it is still an issue that is difficult to tackle To overcome the common fear of discussing race of saying something wrong this book brings together over thirty contributions by teachers and students of different ethnicities and races who offer their experiences ideas and advice With passion and sensitivity they cover such topics as the development of racial consciousness and identity in children admit their failures and continuing struggles write about creating safe spaces and the climate that promotes thoughtful discussion model self reflection demonstrate the importance of giving voice to students recount how they responded to racial incidents and used current affairs to discuss oppression describe courses and strategies they have developed explain the n word present exercises and pose questions For any teacher grappling with addressing race in the classroom and for pre service teachers confronting their anxieties about race this book offers a rich resource of insights approaches and guidance that will allay fears and provide the reflective practitioner with the confidence to initiate and respond to discussion of race from the pre school and elementary classroom through high school
