Managing Sustainable Resorts Profitably combines business management principles with environmental and social concerns to offer development solutions to these questions. By taking an holistic and contemporary approach to the problem of developing sustainable tourism operations this book provides a comprehensive assessment of the strategies that need to be considered by various governments, developers and in particular the customer investor. The major features of resort development covered by this book include: Environmental scanning of principal external and internal influential factors; The curse and blessings of seasonality; Competition for people's recreation and retirement dollars; Guest activity programming; Environmental issues; Cruise ships as mobile resorts; Staffing issues in isolated areas; Financial challenges for owners and operators alike; Risk Management; Mutually beneficial options for various stakeholders. Based on an analysis of global resort opportunities and trends, the book focuses on those generic features that differentiate regional resort management from urban centric management needs and priorities. Using comparative case studies, the author emphasizes best case benchmark examples of a range of resorts large and small, urban and rural, to illustrate what can be achieved.

Extreme Tourism: Lessons from the World's Cold Water Islands Godfrey Baldacchino, 2006-08-11. This book is a pioneering investigation of the tourism practices in the world's other cold water islands. Located in extreme latitudes and subject to extreme weather conditions, these islands have been developing their tourism appeal in manners that appear sustainable. They present themselves in images that speak to the pristine, unique and superlative aspects of their natural environment, history and culture. Limited seasonality, difficulty of access, restricted infrastructure, harsh climates and water too cold to swim in are integral features of the tourism industry, often welcomed as appropriate filters to the slide to the mass market. The collection contains 13 island case studies. A set of seven hail from Northern latitudes: Baffin, Nunavut, Canada; Banks, Northwest Territories, Canada; Greenland; Kaalaalit, Nunaat; Iceland; Lule, Sweden; Nunivak, Alaska; Solovetsky, Russia; and Svalbard, Norway. A second set of four cover the Southern islands of Chatham, New Zealand; Falklands; Macquarie, Australia; and Stewart, New Zealand. Two other chapters discuss islands from the particular vantage points of cruise ship tourism, one for the Arctic region and one for the Antarctic. Additionally, five conceptual chapters provide insights into key tourism management issues as they apply to cold water island experiences: a) human resources, b) environment, c) promotion, d) seasonality and e) access.

Making and Selling Culture Richard Ohmann, 1996-11-25 An inside look at cultural industries featuring interviews with key players from such companies as Twentieth Century Fox National Public Radio and Coca Cola To what extent do moviemakers television and radio producers advertising executives and marketers merely reflect trends beliefs and desires that already exist in our culture and to what extent do they consciously shape our culture to their own ends In depth interviews with ten executives from the culture industry and five scholarly analyses examine that question and address the issues of power and authority meaning and identity that arise when cultural producers define and react to audiences In their own words leaders from companies like Twentieth Century Fox National Public Radio and Warner Bros Television describe their perception of the sometimes paradoxical relationship between culture and what influences it For example while the former president of Coca Cola North America claims the company has never tried to create a trend he notes that we market in more countries than belong to the United Nations a product that has insinuated itself into the lives of the people to a point where it has become you know it's there These reflections by key players provide an unprecedented view as editor Richard Ohmann writes into the ways cultural producers imagine or know markets and how such knowledge figures in their decisions about what events experiences and products to make
