Though his name is forever linked with the many stately Gothic villas he designed Alexander Jackson Davis was not content to align himself with just one style of architecture. From classicism to Italianate to what he dubbed the Rustic Cottage style, Davis's designs were suitable to all Americans, from the working class to the idle rich. Long before the concept would become mainstream, Davis operated as the first mail order architect. Here in this short form book is his seldom told story.

Alexander Jackson Davis Alexander Jackson Davis, 1854 Alexander Jackson Davis was a notable 19th century American architect, designer and illustrator. During the 1840s and 1850s, Davis was America's leading architect of country houses in a variety of picturesque styles. In the late 1850s, Davis worked with his friend, businessman Llewellyn S. Haskell, to create Llewellyn Park in West Orange, New Jersey, one of the earliest planned suburbs in America. Following the Civil War, America's architectural tastes changed, and Davis's influence waned. The collection consists of the specifications and architectural plans, elevations and sections for a house designed by A. J. Davis for J. G. Lamberson in Jamaica, Long Island, New York, in 1854. There are 11 sheets of printed specifications with manuscript entries throughout and 9 original architectural drawings.

This award-winning, lavishly illustrated history displays the wide range of North Carolina's architectural heritage from colonial times to the beginning of World War II. North Carolina Architecture addresses the state's grand public and private buildings that have become familiar landmarks, but it also focuses on the quieter beauty of more common structures: farmhouses, barns, urban dwellings, log houses, mills, factories, and churches. These buildings, like the people who created them and who have used them, are central to the character of North Carolina.
