History

Cribbage is traditionally supposed to have been invented in the early 17th Century by poet (and alleged fraudster) Sir John Suckling. It evolved from the earlier game Noddy. It is basically a game for two players, though adaptations for 4 players in fixed partnerships, and for 3 players also exist.

Players and cards

Two or four players using a standard 52 card pack. Cards rank: K (high) Q J 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 Ace (low).

Object of the Game

To be the first (or first team) to score 121 points or more accumulated over several deals. Points are scored mainly for combinations of cards either occurring during the play or occurring in a player's hand or in the cards discarded before the play, which form the "crib" or "box".

Board and Pegs

The points are recorded by means of a board and pegs. The holes in the board represent scores from 1 to 60 – a second circuit gives you 120. Therefore first player to peg off the board and reach 121 wins.

Each player (or team) has two pegs: the forward peg shows the player's score to date, and the rear peg shows the previous score. When a player scores points, the rear peg is moved in front to show the new score. The distance between the pegs therefore shows the amount most recently scored, and the opponent can thereby check it has been scored correctly.

Deal

The first deal is determined by cutting the cards. The player cutting the lower card deals and has the first box or crib. If the cards are equal – (including both players cutting a ten card (10, J, Q or K) – there is another cut for first deal. The deal then alternates from hand to hand until the game is over. It is usual to play best of three: for the second game first box and deal alternate, but for the third game – if a decider is needed – there is a fresh cut.

The dealer shuffles, the player on the dealers right cuts the cards and dealer deals 6 cards face down to each player one at a time (or 5 cards for "pairs" play). The cards which are not dealt, are placed face down on the table. At the end of each hand, the played cards are gathered together and the whole pack is shuffled by the new dealer before the next deal.
