Computer-assisted Investigative Reporting Margaret H. DeFleur, 2013-11-26 Conducting computer analyses for the purposes of revealing information of significance to the press represents an extension of one of the most important forms of American journalism into the contemporary era of new technologies Investigative reporting had its start with the establishment of the metropolitan newspaper during the early decades of the 1900s At the time it was a continuation of the evolving tradition of freedom of the press that had characterized American political life since colonial times As it developed investigative reporting stressed facts rather than the opinions of the editor or reporter In turn that tradition had its own intellectual roots Today computer assisted investigative reporting CAIR extends that marketplace of ideas into systematic examinations of the electronic records of government In addition computer analyses of other kinds of information systematically gathered by journalists can provide the press with insights into trends and patterns unlikely to be revealed by other means This unique volume addresses procedures and issues in investigative journalism that have not been explained in other publications It sets forth for the first time a detailed and specific methodology for conducting computer assisted investigative analyses of both large and small scale electronic records of government and other agencies That methodology consists of the logic of inquiry strategies for reaching valid conclusions and rules for reporting what has been revealed by the analyses to the public in clear ways Such systematic methodologies are essential in social and other sciences and the development of a counterpart for investigative journalism has been badly needed That systematic methodology is developed within a context that explains the origin and major characteristics of those elements that have come together in American society to make computer assisted investigative reporting both possible and increasingly a part of standard newsroom practices These include the development of traditional investigative journalism the evolution of computer technology the use of computers by government to keep records the legal evolution of freedom of information laws the rapid adoption of computers in newsrooms the increasing importance of precision journalism and the sharp increase in recent times of computer assisted investigative reporting by American newspapers both large and small The issues addressed in this book are discussed in a very readable context with an abundance of examples and illustrations drawn from the real world of journalism as it is practiced daily in newsrooms around the country Explanations of concepts principles and procedures are set forth in layperson s terms that require very little in the way of knowledge of computers or statistical methods EnCase Computer Forensics Steve Bunting,2008-02-26 EnCE certification tells the world that you ve not only mastered the use of EnCase Forensic Software but also that you have acquired the in depth forensics knowledge and techniques you need to conduct complex computer examinations This official study guide written by a law enforcement professional who is an expert in EnCE and computer forensics provides the complete instruction advanced testing software and solid techniques you need to prepare for the exam Note CD ROM DVD and other supplementary materials are not included as part of eBook file control threshold above which computers exported to countries such as China India and Russia would increase from 85 000 MTOPS to 190 000 MTOPS When the President changes the threshold the National Defense Authorization Act of 1998 requires that the President provide a justification to Congress The justification should at a minimum address the extent to which computers capable of performance between the established and newly proposed level of performance are available from other countries address all their potential military uses and assess the impact of such uses on U S national security interests A related law also requires that we assess the executive branch s proposed changes The justification for the President s January 2002 change to the control threshold for high performance computers was presented in a December 28 2001 report to Congress Thus we 1 assessed the President s justification for the decision as presented in the December 2001 report and 2 identified other issues relevant to the decision to change the control threshold To address these issues we reviewed the statutory requirements for the justification the documentation used by executive branch officials to support the conclusions presented in the report and export control regulations pertaining to high performance computers In addition we obtained information from the 10 manufacturers listed in the President s report on the availability of high performance computers having the specifications described in the report The information obtained from the manufacturers was supplemented with additional information obtained from a leading information technology industry market research organization We also interviewed officials from the Departments of Commerce Defense and State who were responsible for producing the President s report
