The Promise of the University Áine Mahon,2022-01-09 This book offers philosophical readings of the contemporary university and is motivated by a series of pressing challenges in the global context of Higher Education It argues that the university is a place for community for refuge for enlightenment and the careful questioning of knowledge but it is also a place for visceral ambition and for intellectual cowardice for blinkered individualism and professional competitiveness In the context of a highly competitive post crash global economy contemporary students are placed under increasing pressure to distinguish themselves from their peers via a portfolio of learning excellence and extracurricular achievement Growing numbers undertake part or full time employment in order to cover registration fees and the basic costs of living University staff take on very different forms of pressure that operate across the life course of an academic career from early career anxieties to the worries of more privileged and permanent faculty who fear they do not meet ever changing structures assumptions and demands of the university itself This book argues that these interlinked agendas demand consideration from philosophers of education in Ireland Europe and further afield It proposes that we must embody a very careful balancing act one where we remember the romantic ideals and promises of the university while still acknowledging the very real and pressing challenges faced by our staff and students The book will be of interest to academics graduate students and advanced level undergraduates in Philosophy Education Mental Health and Organizational Psychology in both North America and Europe

The Philosopher's Index Richard H. Lineback,1978

Coercion Michael R. Rhodes,2000 In this book Rhodes provides a nonevaluative account of coercion He begins with a thorough discussion of the charge that coercion is an essentially contested concept He argues that effective communication of regulations pertaining to human conduct requires a basic level of clarity as to the kind of conduct being regulated Accordingly he argues that before we prescribe or proscribe conduct we should describe it In short he maintains that wherever possible description should precede prescription and proscription Rhodes begins his descriptive project by providing a fundamental account of human motivation Upon this foundation he supports his distinctions between threats offers throffers and neutral proposals He argues that all coercion claims can be understood in light of these components He applies this analysis to three prominent accounts of coercion as advanced by F A Hayek Harry Frankfurt and Robert Nozick After comparing and contrasting these views Rhodes provides his own account Rhodes s account is based upon the identification of what he refers to as perceived threat avoidance behavior as a necessary condition for coercion As a descriptive or nonevaluative account Rhodes is able to identify coercion independent from normative judgments He argues that it is not the wrongfulness of some conduct that makes it coercion instead it is the coerciveness of some conduct that makes it wrong Unique to Rhodes s account coercion is not necessarily wrong As a descriptive account his view permits an independent analysis of the moral status of an act of coercion The book concludes with a discussion of the normatively significant variables of a coercion claim
