Automotive Engineering ,1997 A Human Factors Evaluation of a Methodology for Pressurized Crew Module Acceptability for Zero-gravity Ingress of Spacecraft Merri J. Sanchez,2000 This project aimed to develop a methodology for evaluating performance and acceptability characteristics of the pressurized crew module volume suitability for zero gravity g ingress of a spacecraft and to evaluate the operational acceptability of the NASA crew return vehicle CRV for zero g ingress of astronaut crew volume for crew tasks and general crew module and seat layout No standard or methodology has been established for evaluating volume acceptability in human spaceflight vehicles Volume affects astronauts ability to ingress and egress the vehicle and to maneuver in and perform critical operational tasks inside the vehicle Much research has been conducted on aircraft ingress egress and rescue in order to establish military and civil aircraft standards However due to the extremely limited number of human rated spacecraft this topic has been unaddressed The NASA CRV was used for this study The prototype vehicle can return a 7 member crew from the International Space Station in an emergency The vehicle s internal arrangement must be designed to facilitate rapid zero g ingress zero g maneuverability ease of one g egress and rescue and ease of operational tasks in multiple acceleration environments A full scale crew module mockup was built and outfitted with representative adjustable seats crew equipment and a volumetrically equivalent hatch Human factors testing was conducted in three acceleration environments using ground based facilities and the KC 135 aircraft Performance and acceptability measurements were collected Data analysis was conducted using analysis of variance and nonparametric techniques
