19th Century Ireland The Search For Stability:

Nineteenth-Century Ireland (New Gill History of Ireland 5) D. George Boyce, 2005-09-27 The elusive search for stability is the subject of Professor D George Boyce's Nineteenth Century Ireland the fifth in the New Gill History of Ireland series. Nineteenth century Ireland began and ended in armed revolt. The bloody insurrections of 1798 were the proximate reasons for the passing of the Act of Union two years later. The long nineteenth century lasted until 1922 by which the institutions of modern Ireland were in place against a background of the Great War, the Ulster rebellion and the armed uprising of the nationalist Ireland. The hope was that in an imperial structure the ethnic religious and national differences of the inhabitants of Ireland could be reconciled and eliminated. Nationalist Ireland mobilised a mass democratic movement under Daniel O Connell to secure Catholic Emancipation before seeing its world transformed by the social cataclysm of the Great Irish Potato Famine. At the same time the Protestant north east of Ulster was feeling the first benefits of the Industrial Revolution. Although post Famine Ireland modernised rapidly only the north east had a modern economy. The mixture of Protestantism and manufacturing industry integrated into the greater United Kingdom and gave a new twist to the traditional Irish Protestant hostility to Catholic political demands. In the home rule period from the 1880s to 1914 the prospect of partition moved from being almost unthinkable to being almost inevitable. Nineteenth century Ireland collapsed in the various wars and rebellions of 1912-22. Like many other parts of Europe then and since it had proved that an imperial superstructure can contain domestic ethnic rivalries but cannot always eliminate them.
