Aging and Health Care Marcia G. Ory, Kathleen Bond, 2024-05-10 Of all the problems associated with a rapidly growing aging population health care demands top priority Research on health care for older people requires an understanding of the basic principles of aging and its related social processes while popular assumptions on the subject are often ill informed and are based more on misconceptions about aging than on scientific knowledge Originally published in 1989 Aging and Health Care focuses on the most urgent health care problems of older people at the time and explores possible solutions Drawing on up to date social and behavioral research it provides a sound basis on which to build practices and policies on aging and health care The contributors examine the complex relationships among aging persons their health care needs and the current health care and support systems Individual chapters contribute in particular to our understanding of the interactions of the health care system with individual aging processes and the interdependence between the informal and formal care systems With its emphasis on the interrelationships of health care with the biological psychological and social changes that people experience as they grow older Aging and Health Care will still be of historical interest to those studying in social science aging and public health

Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging Barbara Berkman, 2006-02-09 The Handbook of Social Work in Health and Aging is the first reference to combine the fields of health care aging and social work in a single authoritative volume. These areas are too often treated as discrete entities while the reality is that all social workers deal with issues in health and aging on a daily basis regardless of practice specialization. As the baby boomers age the impact on practice in health and aging will be dramatic and social workers need more specialized knowledge about aging health care and the resources available to best serve older adults and their families. The volume's 102 original chapters and 13 overviews written by the most experienced and prominent gerontological health care scholars in the United States and across the world provide social work practitioners and educators with up to date knowledge of evidence based practice guidelines for effectively assessing and treating older adults and their families new models for intervention in both community based practice and institutional care and knowledge of significant policy and research issues in health and aging. A truly monumental resource this handbook represents the best research on health and aging available to social workers today. Caregiving Systems Steven H. Zarit, Leonard I. Pearlin, K. Warner Schaie, 2019-02-21 Caregiving has emerged as a critical issue in the second half of the life cycle. With the growth of the older population there have been dramatic increases in the number of people needing care and assistance. The responsibility for care typically falls on families at a time when they have limited resources to meet these needs. At a societal level the need for care for growing numbers of disabled elders poses a major challenge for how to organize supportive services in an efficient and responsive system. Bringing together multiple perspectives on caregiving the authors explore informal and formal family caregiving and the pivotal issue of how these systems interface and interact. An overview of this variation is provided by examining family caregiving from three perspectives the effects of culture on helping patterns and family responsibility how different disabilities affect patterns of family care and longitudinal perspectives on the impact that caregiving has on family members. The Berlin Aging Study Paul B. Baltes, Karl Ulrich Mayer, 2001-03-19 The present and future of our society are shaped by an ever increasing proportion of old and very old people. The Berlin Aging Study is one of the largest interdisciplinary efforts to explore old age and aging. Unique aspects of the Berlin Aging Study are the spectrum of scientific disciplines involved the range of discipline specific and interdisciplinary research topics the focus on very old age 70 to over 100 years and the empirical reference to a representative heterogeneous urban population. The study's first cross sectional findings on intellectual abilities self and personality social relationships physical health functional capacity medical treatment mental disorders such as depression and dementia socioeconomic conditions activities everyday competence subjective well being and gender differences are reported in depth in this book. The study was carried out in the context of the Berlin Brandenburg Academy of Sciences study group on Aging and Social Development. The authors primarily conduct their research at the Berlin Max Planck Institute for Human Development the Free University of Berlin and the Humboldt University Berlin. Handbook of Gender, Culture, and Health Richard M. Eisler, Michel

Hersen,2012-10-02 This Handbook illustrates how gender ethnicity age and even sexual orientation and understanding influence the health practices and risk factors for health problems in diverse groups of people Contributions from leading researchers in psychology health and epidemiology provide an interdisciplinary approach to the topic In addition to epidemiological issues this book discusses the view that public health policy and programs must be individually tailored to specific groups to maximize their effectiveness Part I deals with the effects of stress on the health of diverse populations Part II of the book raises the issues of varied health risk factors and health practices for different cultural and socioeconomic groups Part III examines specific health problems and issues common to women and men of varying ethnicity The last section deals with the health problems of specific populations Featuring the latest information for understanding how diverse groups of people perceive and respond to issues relating to their health this Handbook should prove to be a valuable resource to a wide range of practitioners and researchers in psychology medicine psychiatry sociology social work nursing exercise science and counseling
