Aging, Carcinogenesis, and Radiation Biology Kendric C. Smith, 1976 Aging, Carcinogenesis, and Radiation Biology Kendric Smith, 2013-03-09 The covalent attachment to deoxyribonucleic acid in vivo of a large number of different types of chemical compounds both normal cellular constituents such as proteins and amino acids and also exogenous compounds such as drugs carcinogens etc have been shown to exert profound effects upon cells Four research activities formerly considered to be totally independent relate to this problem of nucleic acid adducts 1 normal covalent attachment of DNA to membranes protein linkers in chromosomes etc 2 the roles of radiation and chemical enhancement of DNA adduct formation in cell killing and mutagenesis A related field is the use of known cross linking reactions to gain information on structural associations in macromolecular complexes 3 the relevance of DNA adducts to chemical and radiation carcinogenesis 4 the relevance of DNA adducts to the cross linking theory of cellular aging 1 There are numerous examples of normal linkages between DNA and protein e g DNA membrane attachment sites protein linkers in chromosomes amino acids covalently linked to DNA as a function of growth conditions and gene regulation by non covalently bound proteins A summary of data on natural adducts to DNA thus serves to introduce the subject of the radiation and chemical enhancement of DNA adduct formation 2 In the past radiation biology has been concerned mainly with trying to understand the radiation chemistry of purified DNA and the biological effects and repair of these radiation induced alterations when produced in cellular DNA Aging, Carcinogenesis, and Radiation Biology Kendric C. Molecular Basis of Aging Alvaro Macieira-Coelho, 2017-11-22 Using a new integrative approach Molecular Basis of Aging describes the aging phenomenon within mammalian organisms from the perspective of changes in information storage and coordination between hierarchical orders of structure This unique approach provides the reader with a thorough insight into the evolution of molecular cellular tissue and organ systems and processes in mammals This informative volume contains up to date reviews of Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965-70 Directory of Published Proceedings, 1982 Veterans at Risk Institute of Medicine, Committee on the Survey of the Health Effects of Mustard Gas and Lewisite, 1993-02-01 Recently World War II veterans have come forward to claim compensation for health effects they say were caused by their participation in chemical warfare experiments In response the Veterans Administration asked the Institute of Medicine to study the issue Based on a literature review and personal testimony from more than 250 affected veterans this new volume discusses in detail the development and chemistry of mustard agents and Lewisite followed by interesting and informative discussions about these substances and their possible connection to a range of health problems from cancer to reproductive disorders The volume also offers an often chilling historical examination of the use of volunteers in chemical warfare experiments by the U S military what the then young soldiers were told prior to the experiments how they were encouraged to remain in the program and how they were treated afterward This comprehensive and controversial book will be of importance to policymakers and legislators military and civilian planners officials at the Department of Veterans Affairs military historians and researchers Annual Report Argonne National Laboratory. National Union Catalog ,1976 The Role of DNA Damage and Repair in Cell Aging B.A. Gilchrest,V.A. Bohr,2001-03-09 Aging occurs at the level of individual cells a complex interplay between intrinsic programming and exogenous wear and tear with genetically determined cellular capacity to repair environmentally induced DNA damage playing a central role in the rate of aging and its specific manifestations In 12 chapters The Role of DNA Damage and Repair in Cell Aging provides an intellectual framework for aging of mitotic and post mitotic cells describes a variety of model systems for further studies and reviews current concepts of DNA responses and their relationship to the phenomenon of aging As part of a series entitled Advances in Cell Aging and Gerontology this volume also summarizes seminal recent discoveries such as the molecular basis for Werner syndrome a mutant DNA helicase the complementary roles of telomere shortening and telomerase activity in cell senescence versus immortalization the role of apoptosis in the homeostasis of aging tissue and the existence of an inducible SOS like response in mammalian cells that minimizes DNA damage from repeatedly encountered injurious environmental agents Insights into the relationship between cellular aging and age associated diseases particularly malignancies are also provided in several chapters This book is an excellent single source of information for anyone interested in DNA repair mechanisms of aging or certainly their intersection Students will gain a general appreciation of these fields but even the most senior investigators will benefit from the detailed coverage of rapidly advancing areas Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress,1977 A current literature report on the carcinogenic properties of ionizing and non-ionizing radiation National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health. proper use of optical radiation and techniques and the understanding of fundamental photoinduced biological processes are concerned Moreover laser photobiology appears a very promising field for the investigation of fundamental processes at the biomolecular level
