National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.),1982 Aging in Nonhuman Primates Douglas M. Bowden,1979 Parenting across the Life Span Jeanne Altmann,2017-09-04 Research on parenting through the life course has developed around two separate approaches Evolutionary biology provides fresh perspectives from life history theory using behavioral ecology and parental investment theory At the same time the social and behavioral sciences integrates research from long term studies of individual development and from the collection of life histories This path breaking book advances evolutionary life history research by integrating perspectives of these two approaches into a biosocial science of the life course It examines parenthood as a commitment extending throughout life and focuses on the impact on parental and child behavior of changes in the timing distribution and intensity of parental investment This perspective is particularly appropriate for research on parenting since the family is the universal human institution within which the bearing and rearing of children has been based and which transmits traditions beliefs and values to the young

Hof,Tamàs Fülöp,2002-07 As the number of elderly people in human populations increases the study of normal aging age related disorders and enhanced longevity is taking on new urgency Fundamental research will provide means of preventing and effectively treating the most debilitating and distressing aspects of advanced age Considerations of aging in non human life forms do not aim at life extension but at an increasing appreciation for the biological role of the aging process in populations in addition to developing a more comprehensive understanding of the mechanisms of aging The present volume focuses on primate aging because human characteristics that evolved during their evolution are homologous with those of other primates Therefore the research on nonhuman primates will decidedly also contribute to our understanding of the process of human aging The topics of this volume include brain aging and neurodegenerative diseases social behavior cognition and aging skeletal aging in natural and captive conditions and consequences of caloric restriction for life and health extension The great variety of contributions aim at providing a survey of the relevant work in progress and increasing the understanding of normal and pathological aging and life span enhancement in a variety of nonhuman primate species Parenting Across the Life Span Jane Beckman Lancaster, Research on parenting through the life course has developed around two separate approaches Evolutionary biology provides fresh perspectives from life history theory using behavioral ecology and parental investment theory At the same time the social and behavioral sciences integrates research from long term studies of individual development and from the collection of life histories This path breaking book advances evolutionary life history research by integrating perspectives of these two approaches into a biosocial science of the life course It examines parenthood as a commitment extending throughout life and

Kertzer, Jennie Keith, 1984 Library of Congress Catalogs Library of Congress, 1982 Behavioral Development of Nonhuman Primates F. R. Akins, 1980 The present volume represents the result of two years of work originally begun as a fifteen member student project under my supervision at NASA Ames Research Center Moffett Field California As a means of acquainting team members with previous research related to our NASA experiments with long term isolation and confinement effects upon nonhuman primate behavior a weekly meeting was arranged for students to orally present abstracts of various articles they had read As the number of references increased we decided to expand our efforts through several computer searches of the psychological biological anthropological and medical literature Upon completion of our experiments at NASA three of the team members and myself decided to take this basic foundation up date expand and otherwise polish it into the present comprehensive reference tool we feel confident will be of value to investigators and scholars interested in the broad topic of nonhuman primate development as affected by early environmental influences While ours is the only bibliography of this literature which includes both abstracts and indexing several previous publications are worth noting as we found them particularly helpful in our own work Those bibliographies compiled by Agar and Mitchell 1973 Stoffer and Stoffer 1976 and Roy 1976 1977 are excellent In addition to the articles cited in these sources we have added approximately 400 more articles with abstracts and indexing Bones, Genetics, and Behavior of Rhesus Macaques Qian Wang, 2011-11-09 Foreword by Phillip V Tobias The introduction of rhesus macaques to Cayo Santiago Puerto Rico in 1938 and the subsequent development of the CPRC for biomedical research continues its long history of stimulating studies in physical anthropology The CPRC monkey colonies and the precise demographic data on the derived skeletal collection in the Center's Laboratory of Primate Morphology and Genetics LPMG provide rare opportunities for morphological developmental functional genetic and behavioral studies across the life span of rhesus macaques as a species and as a primate model for humans The book grows out of a symposium Wang is organizing for the 78th annual meeting of the American Association of Physical Anthropologists to be held in April 2009 This symposium will highlight recent and ongoing research in or related to physical anthropology and reveal the numerous research opportunities that still exist at this unusual rhesus facility Following an initial historical review of CPRC and its research activities this book will emphasize recent and current researches on growth function genetics pathology aging and behavior and the impact of these researches on our understanding of rhesus and human morphology development genetics and behavior Fourteen researchers will present recent and current studies on morphology genetics and behavior with relevance to primate and human growth health and evolution The book will include not only papers presented in the symposium but also papers from individuals who could not present their work at the meeting due to limitations in the maximum number 14 of permitted speakers

Father-Child Relations Barry S. Hewlett, Due to a greater involvement of American fathers in the direct care of their children in recent years interest in the impact and nature of the father's role in nurturing children has increased While studies about fathers in the industrialized literate West have proliferated little is known about the role of fathers in the preliterate non Western world This collection examines the diversity of paternal roles found in human cultures among various types of societies that are very peaceful and those that actively engage in warfare as a mode of existence Father Child Relations recognizes the importance of understanding both biological and cultural aspects of the father's role Many of the contributors utilize evolutionary or biosocial models including those of developmental psychology to examine the father's role while others rely upon the symbolic analysis of cultural and social anthropology One chapter is devoted to male infant relationships in nonhuman primates a further largely ignored comparative perspective The anthropologists who have contributed to this collection are field workers who have lived intimately over significant periods of time with the people about whom they are writing These research reports from the field have been edited to make them wholly accessible to the non specialist The contributors of this volume recognize that biology and ideology are intertwined both together influence the father's behavior and the effects of his behavior

The Cayo Santiago Macaques Richard G. Rawlins, Matt J. Kessler, 1986-01-01 This volume presents a broad spectrum of research on the Cayo Santiago macaques a unique free ranging colony of rhesus macaques in Puerto Rico It includes thirteen scientific studies on the behavior and biology of the Cayo Santiago macaques as well as a detailed history of the colony and a complete bibliography of over 260 scientific publications based on work at Cayo Santiago from 1938 through 1984 The chapters represent examples of both short and long term research conducted on the island over the past several years Some are reviews providing a synopsis of complex longitudinal studies of behavior vocal communication functional morphology genetics and population dynamics Others document the results of opportunistic studies of behavior or biological surveys The chapters cover a broad range of topics but all share a common dependence on the detailed life history and genealogical data which make the Cayo Santiago macaque colony an important international research resource Social Approaches to Sport Robert M. Pankin, 1982 Essays about sports by sociologists organized around the theme of social organization and differentiation Sports are viewed as they reinforce the structure of Western industrial society Other topics include the role of sports throughout the life cycle
