Agriculture for Beginners Charles William Burkett, Frank Lincoln Stevens, Daniel Harvey Hill, Agriculture for Beginners Charles William Burkett, Frank Lincoln Stevens, Daniel Harvey Hill, 1914 Agriculture for Beginners Charles William Burkett, 2015-06-16 Excerpt from Agriculture for Beginners The authors of this little book believe that there is no line of separation between the science of agriculture and the practical art of agriculture They are assured by experience that agriculture is eminently a teachable subject They are convinced that the theory and practice of agriculture can be taught at one and the same time They see no difference between teaching the child the fundamental principles of farming and teaching the same child the fundamental truths of arithmetic geography or grammar They hold that a youth should be trained for the farm just as he is trained for any other occupation If they are right in these views the training must begin in the public schools This is true for two reasons I It is universally admitted that aptitudes are developed tastes acquired life habits formed during the years that a child is in the public school Hence during these important years every child intended for the farm should be taught to know and love nature should be led to form habits of observation and should be required to begin a study of those great laws upon which agriculture is based A training like this would go far towards making his life work profitable and delightful About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works [Agriculture for Beginners. Beginners Quick and Easy Guide to Making Money in Agriculture Alex Nkenchor Uwajeh, When the majority of people think about agriculture they picture big farms spanning across large acreage They imagine thousands of heads of cattle roaming across the landscape or they imagine fields filled with brown gold heads of wheat waiting for massively expensive farm machinery to arrive for harvest What you may not realize is that it is often possible to make more money on a small farm with just an acre or two than on a massive farm with huge acreage The growth potential of any agricultural business is now more promising than ever before thanks largely to the increasing demand for a broader range of fresh produce than ever before
