in which publicly enacted words and silences were used to construct legal and political relationships in a society where traditional hierarchies were very much in flux Law in early Ireland was a verbal art grounded as much in aesthetics as in the enforcement of communal norms In contrast with modern law no sharp distinction existed between art and politics Visualizing legal events through the lens of procedure Stacey helps readers recognize the creative fluid and inherently risky nature of these same events While many historians have long realized the mnemonic value of legal drama to the small principally nonliterate societies of the early Middle Ages Stacey argues that the appeal to social memory is but one aspect of the role played by performance in early law In fact legal performance like other more easily recognized forms of verbal art created and transformed as much as it recorded

The Cross Goes North Martin Carver, 2005 37 studies of the adoption of Christianity across northern Europe over 1000 years and the diverse reasons that drove the process In Europe the cross went north and east as the centuries unrolled from the Dingle Peninsula to Estonia and from the Alps to Lapland ranging in time from Roman Britain and Gaul in the third and fourth centuries to the conversion of peoples in the Baltic area a thousand years later These episodes of conversion form the basic narrative here History encourages the belief that the adoption of Christianity was somehow irresistible but specialists show the underside of the process by turning the spotlight from the missionaries who recorded their triumphs to the converted exploring their local situations and motives What were the reactions of the northern peoples to the Christian message Why would they wish to adopt it for the sake of its alliances In what way did they adapt the Christian ethos and infrastructure to suit their own community How did conversion affect the status of farmers of smiths of princes and of women Was society wholly changed or only in marginal matters of devotion and superstition These are the issues discussed here by thirty eight experts from across northern Europe some answers come from astute readings of the texts alone but most are owed to a combination of history art history and archaeology working together MARTIN CARVER is Professor of Archaeology University of York

This work examines how and why Roman structures commonly villas forts and bathhouses were reinvented as religious centres in the Post Roman period Two principal lines of enquiry are pursued the relationship of post Roman burials with Roman buildings and the relationship between early churches and Roman buildings The aims of this research were to establish a unified corpus around which the study of these type sites may be pursued to present a balanced judicious and informed consideration of the problem of continuity and to critically assess various models for the progress from secular structures to sacred sites and to demonstrate that the physical remains of Roman structures had a significant impact on the religious landscape of Early Medieval England sites Ulster and the Isles in the Fifteenth Century Simon

Kingston, 2004 Kingston explores the considerable flow of people influence and power from the western islands of Scotland to northeastern Ireland over the period from the defeat of Scots by defenders of the English lordship of Ireland in 1318 at Faughart and the 1390s when the Mac Domhnaill of Antrim Clann Eoin Mhoir had transformed from retained warriors or seasonal mercenaries into locals Distributed in the US by ISBS Annotation 2004 Book News Inc Portland OR booknews.com

Proceedings of the Prehistoric Society for ..., 1992 Inishmurray: Archaeological survey and excavations 1997-2000 Jerry O'Sullivan, Tomás Ó Carragáin, 2008 On the small island of Inishmurray off the coast of County Sligo is one of the best preserved early medieval church sites in northern Europe Unlike many of the other stone built establishments on Ireland's western littoral this was no hermitage where a handful of ascetics sought refuge from society Inishmurray was a monastery of some significance and around the end of the first millennium its community built a remarkable suite of stations on the island's perimeter that helped to establish it as one of the premier pilgrimage centres in the northwest of the country

In this the first detailed study of the site since the 1880s a comprehensive new survey and series of excavations form the basis for a major reassessment of its significance In particular the authors place the satellite monuments firmly in a tradition of ritual practice that is attested to at cities and important monasteries throughout early medieval Christendom This book offers the reader an understanding of how the sacred topography of Inishmurray was experienced both by its resident community of monks and by the pilgrims who journeyed there Book Jacket
