International Politics of Recognition Thomas Lindemann, Erik Ringmar, 2015-11-17 The origins of international conflict are often explained by security dilemmas power rivalries or profits for political or economic elites Common to these approaches is the idea that human behaviour is mostly governed by material interests which principally involve the quest for power or wealth The authors question this truncated image of human rationality Borrowing the concept of recognition from models developed in philosophy and sociology this book provides a unique set of applications to the problems of international conflict and argues that human actions are often not motivated by a pursuit of utility maximisation as much as they are by a quest to gain recognition This unique approach will be a welcome alternative to the traditional models of international conflict

The Making of Council Democracy Babak Amini,2024-09-30 Council democracy is a particular form of democratic socialism that strives towards democratic self governance on the basis of active free and associated individuals working cooperatively within a federated council system Both in political practice and in social theory council democracy has resurfaced periodically in the past most notably in the interwar period in the long 1960s and since the turn of the 21st century This book offers a novel theoretical and methodological approach to the study of council democracy It focuses on the processes that led to the emergence of two of the foundational and most radical instances of council democratic movements in Germany during the German Revolution 1918 1919 and in Italy during the biennio rosso 1919 1920 With all their diversities ambiguities and shortcomings these movements in varying degrees sought democratic alternatives to autocratic relations from local to state levels and to economic relations from workplace to national levels The book shows how the processes through which state led war mobilization transformed the contours of class struggle laid the ground for the emergence of council democratic movements with specific characteristics in Germany and Italy and not in the United Kingdom and France
