Museum of Art, 1985 Art and Religion in Africa Rosalind Hackett, 1998-10-01 Africa's religious and artistic traditions constitute a primary example of its intellectual and cultural vitality Artistic works play a vital role especially where oral traditions dominate in communicating ideas about the relationship between the human spiritual and natural worlds This work is a comparative study of Africa's visual and performing arts concentrating on their geographical material and gendered diversity and focusing on the relation of these arts to African religion The author combines ethnographic and art historical methodology but does not assume any prior knowledge of African art or African religion The text seeks a greater understanding of the philosophical and religious aspects of African art thus challenging western perceptions of what is important in terms of artistic representation This approach reveals the transformative capacities and multi dimensionality of African art The work also highlights the changes brought about by Christianity Islam and the newer religious movements in post colonial Africa Important African & Oceanic Art Auction Heritage Auction Galleries (Dallas, Tex.), 2007 The Arts of Africa: 1992 (With Omissions from 1986 through 1991), 1997 Art and Life in Africa Christopher D. Essays and catalogue entries by leading art historians and anthropologists attend closely to the meanings and materials of the works themselves in addition to fleshing out original contexts. These experts also underscore the ways in which provenance and collection history are important to understanding how we view such objects today. Celebrating the Art Institute's collection of traditional African art as one of the oldest and most diverse in the United States, this is a fresh and engaging look at current research into the arts of Africa as well as the potential of future scholarship. The Arts of Africa

,1992 Guide to Photographic Collections at the Smithsonian Institution: National Museum of American History Smithsonian Institution, Diane Vogt O'Connor, Diane Vogt-O'Connor, 1989 This essential reference volume, the first in a five-volume set, describes a million photographs at the National Museum of American History for curators, researchers, historians, artists, filmmakers, and collectors. See Photography for other volumes in this series. Griot Potters of the Folona Barbara E. Frank, 2022-02-02 Griot Potters of the Folona reconstructs the past of a particular group of West African women potters using evidence found in their artistry and techniques. The potters of the Folona region of southeastern Mali serve a diverse clientele and firing thousands of pots weekly during the height of the dry season. Although they identify themselves as Mande, the unique styles and types of objects the Folona women make and more importantly the way they form and fire them are fundamentally different from Mande potters to the north and west. Through a brilliant comparative analysis of pottery production methods across the region, especially how the pots are formed and the way the techniques are taught by mothers to daughters, Barbara Frank concludes that the mothers of the potters of the Folona very likely came from the south and east, marrying Mande griots, West African leatherworkers who are better known as storytellers or musicians as they made their way south in search of clientele as early as the 14th or 15th century CE. While the women may have nominally given up their mothers' identities through marriage over the generations, the potters preserved their maternal heritage through their technological style, passing this knowledge on to their daughters and thus transforming the very nature of what it means to be a Mande griot. This is a story of resilience and the continuity of cultural heritage in the hands of women.

Chokwe Chukwuma Azuonye, 1996-12-15 Surveys the history, culture, and contemporary life of the Chokwe people of Angola, Zaire, and Zimbabwe. Africa, Art and Ritual Daphne Lane Beneke, Adam Mekler, 2000
