International migration and the social diversity it creates constitute one of the key global challenges of the early 21st century. Language and communication barriers can compromise equitable access in diverse societies and where socioeconomic disadvantage becomes entrenched it poses risks to security, productivity, and quality of life. Clearly, this is an important issue, and migrants and their language choices are heavily politicized through political and media debates often rely on anecdotal conjecture or are ill informed. Life in a New Language examines the language learning and settlement experiences of 130 migrants to Australia from 34 different countries in Africa, Asia, Europe, and Latin America over a period of 20 years. Reusing data shared from six separate sociolinguistic ethnographies, the book illuminates participants' lived experience of learning and communicating in a new language, finding work, and doing family. Additionally, participants' experiences with racism and identity making in a new context are explored. The research uncovers significant hardship but also migrants' courage and resilience. The book has implications for language service provision, migration policy, open science, and social justice movements. How to be a Complete and Utter Fk Up by Steve McDermott, 2020-12-09. How to be a Complete and Utter F k Up in Life Work and Everything ePub ebook. Blackwell's Five-Minute Veterinary Practice Management Consult by Lowell Ackerman, 2013-10-28.
