and labor unrest to democracy tyranny globalism and the clash of cultures In this new literary history Maria DiBattista and Deborah Epstein Nord contend that even the most seemingly traditional works by British American and other English language women writers redefine the domestic sphere in ways that incorporate the concerns of public life allowing characters and authors alike to forge new emancipatory narratives The book explores works by a wide range of writers including canonical figures such as Jane Austen Charlotte Bront George Eliot Harriet Jacobs Edith Wharton Virginia Woolf Willa Cather Gertrude Stein and Toni Morrison neglected or marginalized writers like Mary Antin Tess Slesinger and Martha Gellhorn and recent and contemporary figures including Nadine Gordimer Anita Desai Edwidge Danticat and Jhumpa Lahiri DiBattista and Nord show how these writers dramatize tensions between home and the wider world through recurrent themes of sailing forth escape exploration dissent and emigration Throughout the book uncovers the undervalued public concerns of women writers who ventured into ever wider geographical cultural and political territories forging new definitions of what it means to create a home in the world The result is an enlightening reinterpretation of women s writing from the early nineteenth century to the present day

Thinking Practices in Mathematics and Science Learning James G. Greeno,Shelley V. Goldman,2013-04-03 The term used in the title of this volume thinking practices evokes questions that the authors of the chapters within it begin to answer What are thinking practices What would schools and other learning settings look like if they were organized for the learning of thinking practices Are thinking practices general or do they differ by disciplines If there are differences what implications do those differences have for how we organize teaching and learning How do perspectives on learning cognition and culture affect the kinds of learning experiences children and adults have This volume describes advances that have been made toward answering these questions These advances involve several agendas including increasing interdisciplinary communication and collaboration reconciling research on cognition with research on teaching learning and school culture and strengthening the connections between research and school practice The term thinking practices is symbolic of a combination of theoretical perspectives that have contributed to the volume editors understanding of how people learn how they organize their thinking inside and across disciplines and how school learning might be better organized By touring through some of the perspectives on thinking and learning that have evolved into school learning designs Greeno and Goldman begin to establish a frame for what they are calling thinking practices This volume is a significant contribution to a topic that they believe will continue to emerge as a coherent body of scientific and educational research and practice
