about humanity's responsibility for the Earth. This book can engender the shift in perspective so needed at this point on the clock of the universe. Gregory Smith, Professor of Education, Lewis Clark College, co-author with David Sobel of Place and Community based Education in Schools. Property Rights and the Environment Giuliano D'Auria, 1999. University courses in environmental economics tend to focus almost exclusively on the role of the state in protecting the environment. However, as these essays show, some less trepid students have discovered that individuals can and do protect the environment through the use of property rights markets and the rule of law. See especially the essay by Giuliano d'Auria. Indeed, private property is crucial for environmental protection as testified by the human and environmental tragedy that befell the collectivized USSR. See the essay by Catherine Gillespie. Moreover, state regulation of the environment can have the perverse consequence of undermining private protection and thereby harming the environment. See the essay by Joseph Thomas. Environmentalists often claim that trade is harmful to the environment, citing the decline of the elephant as being a result of the ivory trade. As Nicola Tynan shows, however, trade itself is not usually the problem; rather, it is a lack of private property rights which reduces the incentives of individuals to conserve species, be they elephants or seahorses. Books In Print 2004-2005 Ed. Fully revised to incorporate recent developments, this third edition of International Security Studies provides students with a comprehensive and accessible textbook on security with a particular emphasis on the use of case studies to illustrate theoretical debates. In addition to presenting the major theoretical perspectives, the book examines a range of important and controversial topics in covering both traditional military and non-military security issues such as nuclear proliferation, humanitarian intervention, food security, and environmental security. Unlike most standard textbooks, the volume also offers a wide range of case studies, including chapters on the US, China, the Middle East, Russia, East Africa, and the Arctic, providing detailed analyses of important global security issues and the application of theoretical debates to major contemporary issues. The 36 chapters contain pedagogical features such as textboxes, summary points, and recommended further reading, and are divided into five thematic sections: Conceptual and theoretical, Military security, Non-military security, Institutions and security, and Case studies. This textbook will be essential reading for all students of security studies and highly recommended for students of critical security studies, human security, peace and conflict studies, foreign policy, and International Relations in general.
