Morris, 2017-01-30 This history of the government funded synthetic rubber research program 1942 1956 offers a rare analysis of a cooperative research program geared to the improvement of existing products and the creation of new ones The founders of the program believed the best way to further research in the new field was through collaboration among corporations universities and the federal government Morris concludes that in fact the effort was ultimately a failure and that vigorous competition proves the best way to stimulate innovation Government programs like the rubber research program are far better at improving existing products the author contends than creating wholly new ones

Materials Matter Ken Geiser, 2001-05-25 The products we purchase and use are assembled from a wide range of naturally occurring and manufactured materials But too often we create hazards for the ecosystem and human health as we mine process distribute use and dispose of these materials Until recently most research has focused on the waste end of material cycles This book argues that the safest and least costly point at which to avoid environmental damage is when materials are first designed and selected for use in industrial production Materials Matter presents convincing evidence that we can use fewer materials and eliminate the use of many toxic chemicals by focusing directly on material chemical use when products are designed It also shows how manufacturers can save money by increasing the effectiveness of material use and reducing the use of toxic chemicals It advocates new directions for the material sciences and government policies on materials And it argues that manufacturers suppliers and customers need to set more socially responsible policies for products and services to achieve higher environmental and health goals The Vortex Frank Uekötter,2024-04-18 Environmental challenges are defining the twenty first century To fully understand ongoing debates about our current crises climate change loss of biological diversity pollution extinction resource woes means revisiting their origins in all their complexity With this ambitious highly original contribution to the environmental history of global modernity Frank Uekötter considers the many ways humans have had an impact on their physical environment throughout history Ours is not a one way trajectory to sudden collapse he argues but rather death by a thousand cuts The many paths we ve forged to arrive in our current predicament from agriculture to industry to infrastructure must be considered collectively if we are to stay afloat in what Uekötter describes as a vortex a powerful metaphor for the flow of history capturing the momentum and the many crosscurrents that swept people and environments along His book invites us to look at environmental challenges from multiple perspectives including all the twists and turns that have helped to create the mess we find ourselves in Uekötter has written a world history for an age where things are falling apart where we know what lies ahead and are equipped with the right tools technological and otherwise and plenty of experience to deal with environmental challenges but somehow fail to get our affairs in order Risk and Adaptation in a Cancer Cluster Town Laura Hart,2023-06-16 In disease cluster communities across the country environmental contamination from local industries is often suspected as a source of disease But civic action is notoriously hampered by the slow response from government agencies to investigate the cause of disease and the complexities of risk assessment In Risk and Adaptation in a Cancer Cluster Town Laura Hart examines another understudied dimension of community inaction the role of emotion and its relationship to community experiences of social belonging and inequality Using a cancer cluster community in Northwest Ohio as a case study Hart advances an approach to risk that grapples with the complexities of community belonging disconnect and disruption in the wake of suspected industrial pollution Her research points to a fear driven not only by economic anxiety but also by a fear of losing security within the community a sort of pride that is not only about status but connectedness Hart reveals the importance of this social form of risk the desire for belonging and the risk of not belonging ultimately arguing that this is consequential to how people make judgements and respond to issues Within this context where the imperative for self protection is elusive affected families experience psychosocial and practical conflicts as they adapt to cancer as a way of life Considering a future where debates about risk and science will inevitably increase Hart considers possibilities for the democratization of risk management and the need for transformative approaches to environmental justice

Toward Engaged Anthropology Sam Beck, Carl A. Maida, 2013-07-01 By working with underserved communities anthropologists may play a larger role in democratizing society The growth of disparities challenges anthropology to be used for social justice This engaged stance moves the application of anthropological theory methods and practice toward action and activism However this engagement also moves anthropologists away from traditional roles of observation toward participatory roles that become increasingly involved with those communities or social groupings being studied The chapters in this book suggest the roles anthropologists are able to play to bring us closer to a public anthropology characterized as engagement
