

DESCRIBING PLACES

Name _____

I like travel a lot. Wherever I go, there are always some buildings that catch people's eyes. To me, the most impressive building is Melbourne Parliament house. The building is located in Spring Street, Melbourne. The city has quite a few elegant buildings and one of these is this large building. When you look at it at a distance, the whole place has a library feel about it. Inside the building, small things like all the wooden panels of the doors, corridors and halls have been well polished and the painted door signs have been kept fresh. The Building was started during the gold rush era and so a lot of money had been spent. Such things as evidence for prosperity of the age are the extensive use of gold leaf on the columns and the fine detailed murals on the roof of many of the larger halls. The interesting thing about parliament house is that it is never finished. I was told that ever since it was built little touches have been added continuously. Walking into this building, a feeling of grandeur just came to me, like a mixture of peace and purpose. I think people are attracted like me.

1. What is the place described in the paragraph?
2. Which country is the place in?
3. What are the feelings when you are in the building?
4. When did people start building it?
5. What is the building like when you look outside it?
6. Why did the building cost a lot of money to build it? What is the evidence?
7. Try to find the building materials used in it.
