Alan Sillitoe's Nottinghamshire:

Alan Sillitoe's Nottinghamshire Alan Sillitoe, 1987 Life Without Armour Alan Sillitoe, 2016-07-12 A candid and surprising memoir of the early life of one of England's most acclaimed and enduring post WWII writers Born in 1928 into a poverty stricken family in working class Nottingham bestselling British novelist Alan Sillitoe's childhood was marked by his father's unpredictable and violent rage as well as a near certain condemnation to a life of labor on an assembly line His family relocated frequently to avoid rent collectors trading in one bug infested hovel for another Though intelligent and curious the young author to be failed his grammar school entrance exams and it seemed he was destined for work in a factory The onset of Sillitoe's teenage years however coincided with the advance of Hitler into Russia and the war offered a chance for the boy to seek out a different fate At the age of fourteen Sillitoe used a fake ID to enroll in the Air Training Corps and went on to join the Ministry of Aircraft Production as an air traffic control assistant He dreamed of becoming a pilot but the war ended just after he qualified for training and he was instead shipped off to the Malayan jungle during the Communist insurgency as a radio operator for the Royal Air Force RAF After two years of living from one wireless watch to the next taking in bearings and atmospheric readings though the radio and exploring dangerous and primal landscapes by foot Sillitoe finally returned to a prospectless postwar England and was diagnosed with tuberculosis But this curse soon became a blessing In the RAF hospital Sillitoe began to read everything from Kant to Descartes to Bernard Shaw and he decided to become a writer Already a veteran on an RAF disability pension at the age of twenty one Sillitoe began writing full time neither his physical challenges nor his numerous rejections from publishers deterring him in the least He joined the Nottingham Writers Club and his short stories began to achieve some minor local success Soon after a chance meeting with the American poet Ruth Fainlight led to full blown love and the two set off for France eager to live in a bucolic setting where they could dedicate all of their time to writing Circumstance and favorable exchange rates then led the couple to Spain where Sillitoe continued his literary pursuits met many artists and writers had run ins with gypsies and even underwent police interrogations Four unpublished novels later and after nearly a decade of honing his craft Sillitoe finally found staggering success in his working class novel Saturday Night and Sunday Morning and his collection of short stories The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner Written with Sillitoe's signature simplicity this in depth autobiography not only gives insight into the formative years and mental maturation of one of Britain's most influential writers but also tells a great story of an underprivileged man who with perseverance made the most of his particular fate A Start in Life Alan Sillitoe, 2016-08-09 An outrageously funny novel of adventure sex corruption and crime from one of the greatest British authors of the twentieth century Michael Cullen is proud to be a bastard His first memories are of the war when his mother welcomed every soldier in Britain into her house and young Michael hid beneath her bed to let the rocking of the springs lull him to sleep By the time he's eighteen he's got a pregnant girlfriend and is staring down a long life of working class respectability that simply makes him sick So Michael says goodbye to his girlfriend and his home in Nottingham and hits the road for London where he will make his fortune or die trying From the nightclubs of Soho to the depths of London s underworld Michael can t help but get into trouble But whether he s chauffeuring a vicious gangster or smuggling gold bullion across the channel he never stops having a wonderful time Indeed Michael is something else entirely a happy bastard with nothing to lose A rollicking picaresque novel by the legendary author of such classics of kitchen sink realism as The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner and Saturday Night and Sunday Morning A Start in Life is one of the funniest British novels of the twentieth century A Start in Life is the 1st book in the Michael Cullen Novels but you may enjoy reading the series in any order A Start in Life is for my money the best novel that Sillitoe has yet written New Statesman The kind of hilarious nonsense that keeps you riveted to deck chair or arm chair depending on the season The Daily Telegraph Praise for Alan Sillitoe The master of British verbal architecture Rolling Stone Alan Sillitoe 1928-2010 was a British novelist poet essayist and playwright known for his honest humorous and acerbic accounts of working class life Sillitoe served four years in the Royal Air Force and lived for six years in France and Spain before returning to England His first novel Saturday Night and Sunday Morning was published in 1958 and was followed by a collection of short stories The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner which won the Hawthornden Prize for Literature With over fifty volumes to his name Sillitoe was elected a Fellow of the Royal Society of Literature in 1997 Nottingham and memoir from a bestselling British author chronicles the destructive effects of WWI on two working class families in Nottingham. An advocate for ordinary people, Alan Sillitoe combines family memoir with exhaustive research on military records and fuses them with artistic speculation in this inventive and political historical novel. Central to the story are the author's grandfather, the blacksmith Ernest Burton, and his uncle Edgar, a World War I deserter. The launching point for this narrative family album is a legless match seller from Sillitoe's childhood who walked on the streets of Nottingham with his hands. When the young Sillitoe asked his family about the reasons behind this man's deformity, he heard a series of different accounts. His mother said it was a train accident, his father claimed it was an explosion during the Battle of the Somme, his grandmother was convinced it was a birth defect, and his grandfather declared it was a way of dodging work. Thus Sillitoe sets the tone for a tale in which anything which is not scientific or mathematical thought is colored by the human imagination and feeble opinion. In order to rediscover the fictional truth behind his own spirit, Sillitoe then delves into his heritage. He paints a telling portrait of his maternal grandfather, a blacksmith who hated dogs, despised the people who loved him, and was blinded in one eye by a shred of steel. Separated from society by his illiteracy and both feared and respected for his instinctual cunning, Ernest was a tyrant to his wife and eight children, a hardworking provider, and a talented craftsman. On his father's side of the family, Sillitoe explores the life of his uncle Edgar, the darling of the family who enlisted in the British army when the Great War began in 1914. However, when the young man discovered that his service consisted of dysentery, haircuts, and taking orders, he sensibly deserts. To avoid the military police, he leaves Nottingham and bicycles furiously on the back roads to his sister's house in Hinkley, but is caught a few days later in a pub and sent back to his battalion. A persistent man, Edgar deserts a second time and hides out in the forest, but again he is captured and sent just in time to join the Sherwood Foresters on the first day of the Battle of the Somme. Raw Material spans a century of family history and legends, interweaving personal memories with collected facts and hearsay. The kitchen sink realism Sillitoe is known for takes on a more philosophical and transparent approach in this innovative self-portrait that explores the base matter and inspirations of the esteemed British novelist's life work.
