Shannon Ryan, 1994 The demand for oil to light and lubricate the industrial world changed the face of much of the planet Newfoundland was part of this widespread transformation as migratory cod fishermen settled here in the early 1800s in order to hunt seals in late winter and early spring The seal fishery brought prosperity and growth and shaped this new society but seal hunters and their families paid a heavy human cost in lives lost and suffering experienced The traditional oil industries were doomed with the discovery of mineral oils and the harnessing of electricity and Newfoundland along with other societies faced painful adjustments while searching for alternative industries However while its place in the economy declined the seal fishery left an indelible imprint on Newfoundland's culture and identity This study with its tables maps and illustrations examines the history of the Newfoundland seal fishery from its origins up to 1914 ranging in scope from the life of the hunter on the ice flows to the demands of the consumer in the marketplace Shannon Ryan was born in Riverhead Harbor Grace Newfoundland and educated at Memorial University of Newfoundland BA Ed BA and MA and the University of London PH He worked for nine years as a schoolteacher and principal and in 1971 he was appointed to the faculty of History His publications and presentations are in the fields of Newfoundland Maritime fisheries and oral history He served as president of the Newfoundland Historical Society during 1984-1988 as Newfoundland's representative on the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada during 1989-1993 and was elected a fellow of the Royal Society in 1988 The Lesser-Known Varieties of English Daniel Schreier, Peter Trudgill, Edgar W. Schneider, Jeffrey P. Williams, 2010-03-04 This is the first ever volume to compile sociolinguistic and historical information on lesser known and relatively ignored native varieties of English around the world Exploring areas as diverse as the Pacific South America the South Atlantic and West Africa it shows how these varieties are as much part of the big picture as major varieties and that their analysis is essential for addressing some truly important issues in linguistic theory such as dialect obsolescence and death language birth dialect typology and genetic classification patterns of diffusion and transplantation and contact induced language change It also shows how close interwoven fields such as social history contact linguistics and variationist sociolinguistics are in accounting for their formation and maintenance providing a thorough description of the lesser known varieties of English and their relevance for language spread and change Folktales of Newfoundland (RLE Folklore) Herbert Halpert, J.D.A. Widdowson, 2015-02-20 This collection of Newfoundland folk narratives first published in 1996 grew out of extensive fieldwork in folk culture in the province The intention was to collect as broad a spectrum of traditional material as possible and Folktales of Newfoundland is notable not only for the number and quality of its narratives but also for the format in which they are presented A special transcription system conveys to the reader the accents and rhythms of each performance and the endnote to each tale features an analysis of the narrator's language In addition Newfoundland has preserved many aspects of English and Irish folk tradition some of which are no longer active in the countries of their origin Working from the premise that traditions virtually unknown in England might still survive in active form in Newfoundland the researchers set
