Academic Pathfinders:

Academic Pathfinders Patricia J. Gumport, 2002-03-30 From the 1960s to the 1980s a range of academic possibilities for women developed as their career histories and intellectual biographies reveal Some women sought to generate a new knowledge specialty in their disciplines often explicitly defying admonishments that the subject matter was an oxymoron Others pursued academic paths that disregarded these new opportunities and developments Together their accounts portray how feminist scholarship emerged and was facilitated by historically specific conditions a critical mass of like minded women a national political movement an abundance of financial support for doctoral candidates a tolerance from established faculty for students to pursue the margins of disciplinary scholarship and an organizational capacity to add new academic categories for courses programs academic positions and extra departmental groups That historical era has since been supplanted by feminist infighting and backlash as well as more cost conscious academic management practices which have altered the academic landscape for knowledge creation Analyzing the accounts of academic women during this era yields a conceptual framework for understanding how new knowledge is created on multiple levels through personal reflection on life experiences disciplinary legacies local organizational contexts and wider societal expectations Intellectual Leadership

Gumport, 2019-07-16 How did public higher education become an industry This unprecedented account reveals how campus leaders and faculty preserved the vitality and core values of public higher education despite changing resources and expectations American public higher education is in crisis After decades of public scrutiny over affordability access and quality indictments of the institution as a whole abound Campus leaders and faculty report a loss of public respect resulting from their alleged unresponsiveness to demands for change But is this loss of confidence warranted And how did we get to this point In Academic Fault Lines Patricia J. Gumport offers a compelling account of the profound shift in societal expectations for what public colleges and universities should be and do She attributes these new attitudes to the ascendance of industry logic the notion that higher education must prioritize serving the economy Arguing that industry logic has had far reaching effects Gumport shows how this business oriented mandate has prompted colleges to restructure for efficiency gains adopt more corporate forms develop deeper ties with industry and mold academic programs in the interest of enhancing students future employment prospects She also explains how industry logic gained traction and momentum altering what constitutes legitimacy for public higher education Yet Gumport's narrative is by no means defeatist Drawing on case studies of nine public colleges and universities as well as more than 200 stakeholder interviews Gumport's nuanced account conveys the successful efforts of leaders and educators to preserve and even strengthen fundamental public values such as educational access knowledge advancement regardless of currency and civic responsibility Ultimately Academic Fault Lines demonstrates how intrepid faculty and administrators engaged their communities both on and off campus collaborating and inventing win win scenarios to further public higher education s expanding legacy of service to all citizens while preserving its centrality to society and the world Acting Otherwise Peiying Chen,2004-04-01 Acting Otherwise concerns the strategies of action that have been used by feminist scholars to attain the institutionalization of women s gender studies in universities Joy in the Morning Carolyn Miller,2010-09-23 Reflections on the seasons and caprices of life experienced by a colored girl of the 1940s as she becomes a woman of the 1960s and beyond The author revisits the choices and missteps that shaped her life and ultimately bore rich fruit thanks to the mercy of GOD The essays capture the essence life lived during a revolutionary period in African American history Corc John J Riemer,Karen Calhoun,2001-04-18 Explore the capabilities and the limitations of CORC and the Dublin Core The explosion of online resources has brought with it a host of new metadata schemes and cataloging projects One of OCLC s most important projects is discussed in CORC New Tools and Possibilities for Cooperative Electronic Resource Description This fascinating volume on the pioneering collaborative computer system will help you enhance the value of library services and improve the productivity of librarians and library users CORC offers a blend of theoretical and practical approaches to broad based and specialized cataloging problems to help you take advantage of the benefits of the new cooperative cataloging of digital resources The fourteen chapters in this book tell stories of new ideas discoveries and insights gained by being part of the CORC project The authors represent the perspectives not only of CORC founders researchers developers and observers but also of library practitioners and managers who are applying CORC to their daily operations The discussions of the creation and use of CORC include a big picture view of CORC from the founder CORC s relation to the program for cooperative cataloging faceted access to LCSH the WordSmith project to obtain subject terminology directly from web documents use of online DDC to assist in classification and subject heading assignment OCLC s Dublin Core MARC crosswalk librarians experiences with the implementations of CORC within cataloging and cross functional teams using CORC and Dublin Core to catalog special categories of material serials art and maps CORC New Tools and Possibilities for Cooperative Electronic Resource Description examines the nuts and bolts practical matters of making a cataloging system work in the Internet environment where information objects are electronic transient and numerous This valuable book will also help to define the future of librarianship and information access in this exciting time when the World Wide Web is transforming education and communication practices Making Multiculturalism Bethany Paige Bryson,2005 Bryson deconstructs the canon wars and uses English departments to demonstrate that social structure is the cornerstone of culture and the appropriate target for cultural policy Inside Graduate Admissions Julie R.
