Academic Writing Intercultural And Textual Issues Pragmatics And Beyond New Series:

Academic Writing Eija Ventola, Anna Mauranen, 1996-03-15 Writing is crucial to the academic world. It is the main mode of communication among scientists and scholars and also a means for students for obtaining their degrees. The papers in this volume highlight the intercultural generic and textual complexities of academic writing. Comparisons are made between various traditions of academic writing in different cultures and contexts and the studies combine linguistic analyses with analyses of the social settings in which academic writing takes place and is acquired. The common denominator for the papers is writing in English and attention is given to native English writers and non native writers problems in different disciplines. The articles in the book introduce a variety of methodological approaches for analyses and search for better teaching methods and ways of improving the syllabi of writing curricula. The book as a whole illustrates how linguists strive for new research methods and practical applications in applied linguistics.

Medical Writing: Modality in Focus Minna Vihla, 2023-11-27 This book examines the role of modal expressions in various medical genres as well as pointing out other markers of speaker attitude. Based on new computer readable data and combining quantitative and qualitative methods the book argues that the use of modal expressions reflects the institutional context of medical discourse. Modal expressions are analysed with reference to hedging, reliability and argumentation and it is shown that their use in different genres reflects a model of medicine leading from biomedical hypotheses through assessment to clinical applications. The book also analyses new genres of medical writing that have developed as a response to the increasing amount of medical information. Advertisements are analysed as an example of medicalization showing how evaluation in the texts is based on medical values.
