Accessible Housing:

Accessible Housing Robert Imrie, 2006 Accessible Housing considers the role and significance of house builders in influencing the design and construction of accessible housing that can meet the needs of disabled people. Its primary focus is the speculative house building process and the construction of private for sale dwellings. The book describes and evaluates the socio-institutional, political and technical relations that underpin the design and construction of housing. These so it is argued shape builders' reluctance to design and construct housing that is flexible to accommodate variations in bodily needs and performance. Book jacket

Accessible Housing Rob Imrie, 2005-11-22 Considering the interrelationships between disability and housing design with a focus on the role of policy in addressing the housing needs of disabled people, this book sets out some of the broader debates about the nature of housing quality and design. In what ways are domestic design and architecture implicated in inhibiting or facilitating mobility and movement of people? What is the nature of government regulation and policy in relation to the design of home environments? The author addresses these questions and brings a range of approaches to accessible design in housing to the forefront of debate, assessing how far policies and practices are equal to the challenge of creating accessible and desirable home environments. Cutchin, Graham D. Rowles, 2024-04-12 Moving away from studies of aging in place this forward looking Handbook focuses on aging and place offering a broader scope and more nuanced complex and enlightening understanding of these two intertwined universals of human experience Not only examining the latest literature the chapters also challenge current thinking on the many intersections opportunities and issues around place and aging that need to be addressed through policy and practice
