Accountability In Restorative Justice:

Accountability in Restorative Justice Declan Roche, 2003 In reviving the idea of an informal approach to conflict resolution the Restorative Justice movement attempts to break out of the predominantly punitive thinking which shapes modern criminal justice Its proponents claim that its guiding ideals personalism participation reparation and reintegration deliver a fairer more effective and more humane justice than does the court system However a simplistic tendency both to extol the virtues of restorative justice and to denigrate all conventional formal approaches risks blinding enthusiasts to the dangers inherent in unchecked participant power as well as to the protection which state institutions and professionals can provide to individuals and communities The procedural safeguard of institutional accountability helps reduce these dangers Examining the experiences of 25 programmes in six countries Accountability in Restorative Justice uncovers a number of neglected overlapping and incomplete types of accountability including the informal type built into deliberations between victims and offenders and their supporters This deliberative accountability can provide a rigorous check for regulating decision making holding state agencies accountable and monitoring the completion of agreements reached between participants This book also considers the role played by formal types of accountability such as external review It suggests a new approach in which judges become more involved in monitoring the quality of deliberation in restorative justice conferences than with enforcing traditional sentencing principles

Reimagining Restorative Justice David O'Mahony, Jonathan Doak, 2017-09-21 This book offers a comprehensive analysis of how mediation and restorative practice have developed in theory and how the theory can be related to the most recent international experiences of what works and how it works

Moral Accountability and International Criminal Law Kirsten Fisher, 2013-03 In the past couple of decades an autonomous international system of law has aggressively developed to deal with individual criminal responsibility for the most heinous of crimes However the development and application of the international criminal system is mired in criticism and concern While international criminal law is playing an increasingly important role in global politics and issues of global security normative theory has not kept pace with the advancements in this area of law This book examines international criminal law ICL from a normative perspective setting out how individuals ought to be held accountable to the world for their contribution to atrocity In addition to addressing the normative basis for ICL the book provides criteria for determining the kinds of actions that should be addressed through international criminal law It asks and answers how individual responsibility can be determined in the context of collectively perpetrated political crimes and whether an international criminal justice system can claim universality in a culturally plural world The book scrutinizes the function of ICL and finally considers how the goals and purpose of international law can be best institutionally supported

Reimagining Restorative Justice David O'Mahony, Jonathan Doak, 2017

Restorative justice theory has largely failed to keep pace with the rapid expansion of restorative practices worldwide indeed it is remarkable how much support RJ has when so few advocates can even define what it is As such this insightful and comprehensive new contribution from two of the top scholars on the frontlines of restorative justice research is hugely welcome Professor Shadd Maruna Centre for Criminology and Criminal Justice University of Manchester Reimagining Restorative Justice is a reflective and balanced reconsideration of restorative justice It deftly sweeps across the large literature on the subject putting it in perspective seeing anew through its wide angle lens Empowerment and accountability provide a fertile framework for this richly reimagined justice Professor John Braithwaite Australian National University David O Mahony and Jonathan Doak have made a significant contribution to the confusing and over complicated field of restorative justice theory They do so through their use of empowerment theory to bring conceptual and operational clarity to the concepts of agency and accountability in restorative processes and outcomes As a result they develop a convincing argument for face to face dialogue between victim and perpetrator within the core of the criminal justice system Their emphasis upon ethical and skilful practice is a welcome riposte to the rapid spread of restorative justice lite driven by managerialism and the need to cut costs Tim Chapman Lecturer at the University of Ulster O Mahony and Doak convincingly argue that rapid developments in the practice of restorative interventions have outstripped restorative justice theory They provide both an outstandingly helpful review of the literature and a fresh theoretical approach based on empowerment theory Everyone seriously interested in restorative justice will want to reflect carefully on the authors conclusions Anthony Bottoms Emeritus Wolfson Professor of Criminology at the University of Cambridge In recent years restorative based interventions have expanded rapidly and are increasingly viewed as a legitimate and even superior means of delivering justice The result of this swift but piecemeal development has been that restorative justice practice has outpaced the development of restorative justice theory This book takes up this challenge by reimagining a new framework for the operation of restorative justice within criminal justice In essence it is contended that the core empowering values of agency and accountability provide a lens for reimagining how restorative justice works and the normative goals it ought to encompass Bloomsbury Publishing
