Accumulation And Development The Logic Of Industrial Civilization:

Creativity and Dependence Celso Furtado,1983      Colonial Legacies Jeremy Adelman,2012-12-06 More than other Atlantic societies Latin America is shackled to its past This collection is an exploration of the binding historical legacies the making of slavery patrimonial absolutist states backward agriculture and the imprint of the Enlightenment with which Latin America continues to grapple Leading writers and scholars reflect on how this heritage emerged from colonial institutions and how historians have tackled these legacies over the years suggesting that these deep encumbrances are why the region has failed to live up to liberal capitalist expectations They also invite discussion about the political economic and cultural heritages of Atlantic colonialism through the idea that persistence is a powerful organizing framework for understanding particular kinds of historical processes      Accumulation and Development. (Criatividade E Dependencia Na Civilizacao Industrial).

The Logic of Industrial Civilization Celso Furtado,1983      Technological Revolutions and the Periphery Eduardo da Motta e Albuquerque,2023-10-13 This book evaluates the uneven propagation of technological revolutions investigating the roots of this phenomenon in the absorptive capabilities that are built by countries and regions at the periphery To understand this global process this book looks to two dimensions time and geography Temporally the book follows the sequence of technological revolutions in the last 250 years With regard to geography the book studies five different regions at the periphery China India Africa Russia and Latin America to understand how they differ in the institutional processes that shape their absorptive capabilities Focusing on each technological revolution and its impact on those five peripheric regions the chapters illustrate how each region coped with each shock wave emanating from the center Providing a truly global outlook of a complex system with a dynamic nature this book will be of interest to researchers and students of development economics the economics of innovation evolutionary economics and the economics of science and technology      Colonialism in Global Perspective Kris Manjapra,2020-05-07 A provocative breath taking and concise relational history of colonialism over the past 500 years from the dawn of the New World to the twenty first century

Development Economics in the Twenty-First Century Claudia Sunna,Davide Gualerzi,2015-12-14 Development Economics has been identified as a homogeneous body of theory since the 1950s concerned both with the study of development issues and with the shaping of more effective policies for less advanced economies Development Economics in the Twenty First Century brings together an international contributor team in order to explore the origins and evolution of development economics This book highlights the different elements of high development theory through a precise reconstruction of the different theoretical approaches that developed between the 1950s and the 1970s These include the theory of balanced and unbalanced growth theory the debate on international trade the concept of dualism dependency theory structuralism and the analysis of poverty and institutions The chapters highlight the relevance and usefulness of these analyses for the contemporary theoretical debate on development issues Comparative perspectives are explored and analysed including those of Keynes Hirschman Krugman and Stiglitz The chapters situate development economics within current debates among economists and historians of economic thought providing a platform for future research This book is suitable for researchers and students with an interest in Development Economics the History of Economic development and the Economics of Developing Countries Disrupted Development in the Congo Ben Radley, 2023-10-27 Since the turn of the century low income African countries have undergone a process of mining industrialization led by transnational corporations The process has been sustained by an African Mining Consensus uniting international financial institutions African governments development agencies and various strands of the academic literature The Consensus position is that mining industrialization can drive transformative processes of social and economic development in low income African settings For this state owned enterprises and local forms of labour intensive mining are deemed unsuitable The former is characterized as corrupt and mismanaged and the latter as an inefficient subsistence activity with links to conflict financing The Consensus holds instead that mining industrialization should be led by the superior expertise and efficiency of transnational corporations Disrupted Development in the Congo reveals the fragile foundations on which this Consensus rests Through an in depth case study of mining in the Democratic Republic of the Congo Ben Radley details how foreign corporations have been prone to mismanagement inefficiencies and rent seeking and implicated in fuelling conflict and violence He also documents how structural impediments to the transformative effects of mining industrialization in low income African countries occur irrespective of ownership and management structures Based on the findings presented Radley urges a move away from the market led logics underpinning the Consensus In the mining sector itself he argues that efforts to mechanize labour intensive forms of local mining better meet the needs of low income African economies for rising productivity labour absorption and the domestic retention of the value generated by productive activity than the currently dominant but disruptive foreign corporate led model Part of this title is published open access This part is made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivatives 4.0 International licence It is available to read and download as a PDF on the Oxford Academic platform Deindustrialization, Distribution, and Development Andy Sumner, Andrew Sumner, 2021 Focussing on the Global South this book examines the emergent processes of stalled industrialization and the spectre of premature deindustrialization in middle income developing countries Through detailed analysis Sumner challenges existing economic myths and outlines what deindustrialization means for the future of global development Politics and the Urban Frontier Tom Goodfellow, 2022 This book offers the first full length comparative analysis of urban development trajectories in Eastern Africa and the political dynamics that underpin them It offers a multi scalar historically grounded and interdisciplinary analysis of the urban transformations unfolding in the world's most dynamic crucible of urban change Routledge Handbook of World-Systems Analysis Salvatore J. Babones, Christopher K. Chase-Dunn, 2012 This volume reviews the state of the field of world systems analysis World systems analysts study the structure of the relationships among people organisations and states and how those relationships change over time      Globalization, the Human Condition, and Sustainable Development in the Twenty-first Century Arno Tausch, Almas Heshmati, 2013-10-01 Globalization the Human Condition and Sustainable Development in the Twenty first Century Cross national Perspectives and European Implications is a cross national 175 nation based exploration of the deep crisis in which Europe currently finds itself Investigating the effects of dependency theory and world systems theory upon the global success of eight dimensions of development including democracy environmental sustainability employment social cohesion high quality tertiary education and gender justice this study argues that the current European crisis has been precipitated by the pro globalist policies of the European Commission and that in the near future these policies threaten to enter Europe into a destructive race to the bottom      The Disempowered Development of Tibet in China Andrew Martin Fischer, 2013-12-20 Series Studies in Modern Tibetan Culture Lexington Books Weatherhead East Asian Institute Columbia University Since the central government of China started major campaigns for western development in the mid 1990s the economies of the Tibetan areas in Western China have grown rapidly and living standards have improved However grievances and protests have also intensified as dramatically evidenced by the protests that spread across most Tibetan areas in spring 2008 and by the more recent wave of self immolation protests that started in 2011 This book offers a detailed and careful exploration of this synergy between development and conflict in Tibet from the mid 1990s onwards when rapid economic growth has occurred in tandem with a particularly assimilationist approach of integrating Tibet into China Fischer argues that the intensified economic integration of Tibet into regional and national development strategies on these assimilationist terms within a context of continued political disempowerment and through the massive channeling of subsidies through Han Chinese dominated entities based outside the Tibetan areas has accentuated various dynamics of subordination and marginalization faced by Tibetans of all social strata Whether or not these dynamics are intended to be discriminatory they effectively accentuate the discriminatory assimilationist and disempowering characteristics of development even while producing considerable improvements in the material consumption of local Tibetans In particular strong cultural linguistic and political biases intensify ethnically exclusionary dynamics among middle and upper strata of the Tibetan labor force which is problematic considering the rapid shift of Tibetans out of agriculture and towards the highly subsidy dependent sectors of the economy especially in urban areas The combination of these disempowering dynamics with the sheer speed of dislocating and disembedding social change provides important insights into recent tensions given that it has accentuated insecurity while restricting the ability of Tibetan communities to adapt in autonomous and self determined ways The study represents one of the only macro level and systemic analyses of its kind in the scholarship on Tibet based on accessible economic analysis and extensive interdisciplinary fieldwork It also carries much interest for those interested in China and in the interactions between development inequality exclusion and conflict more generally      Mining and the State in Brazilian Development Gail D Triner, 2015-10-06 Mining and the State examines the fundamental economic institutional structure of Brazil through the prism of its mineral endowment Ideas and Ideologies in Twentieth-Century Latin America Leslie Bethell, 1996-09-13 The Cambridge History of Latin America is a large scale collaborative multi volume history of Latin America during the five centuries from the first contacts between Europeans and the native peoples of the Americas in the late fifteenth and early sixteenth centuries to the present Ideas and Ideologies in Twentieth Century Latin America brings together chapters from Volumes IV VI and IX of The Cambridge History to provide in a single volume the economic social and political ideologies of Latin America since 1870 This it is hoped will be useful for both teachers and students of Latin American history and of contemporary Latin America Each chapter is accompanied by a bibliographical essay

Elusive Development Yusif A. Sayigh, 2002-03-11 The oil boom prompted a massive inflow of capital into the Arab region But whilst the investment this facilitated clearly had benefits for the region the developmental achievements of the boom decade are demonstrably unable to match the magnitude of the resources directed to development and the reasonable expectations invested in it Professor Yusif Sayigh draws a powerful and painful lesson from this experience applicable to other areas you cannot buy development it must be soundly oriented and sought with resolve by society's leaderships and a people enjoying a large measure of freedom and political participation

Networks, Space and Competitiveness Roberta Capello, Tomaz Ponce Dentinho, 2012-01-01 In a period of increasing globalization and rapid growth in emerging countries recognizing sources of regional competitiveness is of paramount importance This timely and informative book identifies and analyses changes in the origins of regional advantage The expert contributors illustrate that sources of regional competitiveness are strongly linked with spatially observable yet increasingly flexible realities and include building advanced and efficient transport communications and energy networks changing urban and rural landscapes and creating strategic and forward looking competitiveness policies They investigate long term interactions between regional competitiveness and urban mobility as well as the connections that link global sustainability with local technological and institutional innovations and the intrinsic diversity of spatially rooted innovation processes A prospective analysis on networks and innovation infrastructure is presented global environmental issues such as climate change and energy are explored and new policy perspectives relevant world wide are prescribed Networks Space and Competitiveness will prove an invaluable resource for academics students and researchers across a range of fields including international and regional economics regional science economic geography and international business

Personal Identity, National Identity and International Relations William Bloom, 1990 Drawing on Freud Mead Erikson Parsons and Habermas William Bloom relates mass psychological processes to international relations

Decolonial Perspectives on Entangled Inequalities Encarnación Gutiérrez Rodríguez, Rhoda Reddock, 2021-02-26 This book engages with decolonial social and cultural analyses of global entangled inequalities by focusing on their local articulations globally and in particular in Germany Trinidad and Tobago and the United Kingdom

The Political

Economy of Latin American Independence Alexandre Mendes Cunha, Carlos Eduardo Suprinyak, 2016-09-19 Although historians usually trace its origins to the Haitian Revolution of the late 18th Century Latin American political economic and cultural emancipation is still very much a work in progress As new national identities were developed fresh reflection and theorising was needed in order to understand how Latin America related to the wider world Through a series of case studies on different topics and national experiences this volume shows how political economy has occupied an important place in discussions about emancipation and independence that occurred in the region The production of political economic knowledge in the periphery of capitalism can take on many forms importing ideas from abroad translating and adapting them to local realities or else producing concepts and theories specifically designed to make sense of the uniqueness of particular historical experiences The Political Economy of Latin American Independence illustrates each of these strategies exploring issues such as trade policy money and banking socio economic philosophy nationalism and economic development The expert authors stress how the originality of Latin American economic thought often resides in the creative appropriation of ideas originally devised in different contexts and thus usually ill suited to local realities Taken together the chapters illustrate a fertile methodological approach for studying the history of political economy in Latin America This book is of great interest to economic historians specialising in Latin America as well as those who study history of economic thought political economy and Latin American history
